HOOVER, SMITH AND COOLIDGE ASK FOOD FUND

Three National Leaders Beg Red Cross Aid Over Radio.

$25,000,000 RELIEF MEASURE IS HELD UP

House Refers Senate Bill to Committee for Report; Pleas Stirring.

While the House delayed action on the Senate's $25,000,000 appropriation for Red Cross relief, the President of the United States, a former President and the Democratic aspirant for that high office in the last election, last night appealed directly to the people for $10,000,000 "to drive suffering and want from our country."

Speaking over a Nation-wide hookup of the National Broadcasting Co., President Hoover joined with Calvin Coolidge, Alfred Smith, John Barton Payne, national Red Cross chairman, and others in a program dedicated to the Red Cross campaign for funds to aid those hit by the economic depression.

"It is unthinkable that any of our people should be allowed to suffer from hunger or want," President Hoover said. "The heart of the Nation will not permit it. It is to the heart of the Nation that I am appealing tonight. I urge all of my fellow countrymen to contribute promptly and in accordance with their means."

Action on Bill Postponed.

Earlier in the day Republican House leaders decided to postpone, indefinitely, action on the Senate's $25,000,000 appropriation, unsought by the Red Cross, and obstinately opposed by the administration. Meanwhile the measure will be referred to the House appropriations committee for investigation and recommendations. By the time it again reaches the House floor the results of the Red Cross $10,000,000 campaign in all likelihood will be known.

The President made no reference in his radio address to the issue pending between the administration and Congress, other than to say his appeal was "a call for protection to our greatest American institution of charity and above all a call on behalf of those in need."

"The American Red Cross is a great voluntary organization, created by the people themselves, on whom the Nation places reliance in time of need," said President Hoover. "For some months the Red Cross has been providing for those of our fellow citizens who have suffered from the devastating effects of the long-extended drought.

"The area affected is roughly limited to the States bordering upon the Potomac, Ohio and Mississippi Rivers, with limited acute areas in some Southwestern and Northwestern States.

"The people in this area lost a large part of their crops and many thousands are even short of food supplies. The Red Cross now appeals for $10,000,000 of additional funds in order that that essential task may be adequately performed. There is no question but that they are needed."

The address of Mr. Coolidge, broadcast from his Northampton, Mass., home, was characteristically to the point. He reminded the American people that charity should begin at home. Having ministered to the needy in every quarter of the globe, Americans surely will not ignore a request for aid to their "own people," said the former President.

"The call is for $10,000,000," Mr. Coolidge said. "That is a large sum, but this is a rich country and the human suffering to be relieved is great. If each motor vehicle owner in the country should contribute about 40 cents the entire amount would be subscribed.

Appeals for Humanity.

"This is not a time when excuses can take the place of money. Every one knows trade is depressed, losses have been met, and some incomes reduced. We all have the demands of local charity. But the suffering for

Anna Pavlowa Dies After Brief Illness

ANNA PAVLOWA

The Hague, Jan. 23 (Friday) (A.P.). Mme. Anna Pavlowa, considered the world's greatest ballerina, died early this morning after a three-day illness with influenza and pleurisy.

She lacked only eight days of being 46 years old, as her birthday was January 31. The dancer fell ill January 20 after she had come here on tour from Paris and at first it was believed that she merely was suffering from the grip as the result of a slight cold contracted in Paris.

Later the combination of pleurisy and influenza developed, which was complicated by a weakness of the heart. This brought a high temperature and it was announced last night that her condition suddenly had become extremely grave.

With the dancer at the end was her husband and accompanist, Victor D'Andre, whom she married in 1924.

Mme. Pavlowa had visited the United States several times and made what she called her farewell tour in 1924. Last December, however, she announced that she was coming back this year to dance in New York and 75 other American cities. She said she intended to bring with her Escudero, the Spanish dancer, who formerly was La Argentina's partner.

From the age of 10 Mme. Pavlowa's life was devoted to the dance. In 1895 she entered the Imperial Ballet School at St. Petersburg, her birthplace, and in time she became the

ARMS SNAG STRUCK IN LEAGUE COUNCIL

Dawes' Name Proposed by Ireland as Chairman of Next Parley.

ANSWER FROM LIBERIA

Geneva, Switzerland, Jan. 22 (A.P.). After four days of debate the League of Nations council tonight was still wrestling with three unsolved problems, the hardest of which is disarmament.

In two closed meetings the members sought to agree on a date for a disarmament conference and the chairman, who would preside, but apparently they got nowhere. It was understood Arthur Henderson and Aristide Briand urged a conference next year with Dr. Edouard Benes, the Czechoslovakian, as chairman. The Germans were said to favor an earlier date with some other chairman.

There was some discussion also as to the feasibility of having an American in the chair and the name of Ambassador Charles G. Dawes was mentioned as a possibility. The Irish Free State delegate was said to be backing Dawes.

The other problems are the German-Polish minorities issue in upper Silesia, and the Liberian slavery issue, which was dropped in the council's lap today. It was understood the council was hopeful of adjusting the minorities controversy, but was taking its time in formulating a scheme which would conciliate both sides.

The Liberian troubles were brought up by Antoine Sottile, the Liberian representative to the league, who criticized a recent report of a league commission on slavery in Liberia.

He said his country accepted the commission's recommendations and was ready to carry out the reforms it suggested, but "financial slavery," he said, was a greater burden to Liberia than the enslavement of men. Liberia can not submit to the dictation of any "super state," he asserted, adding that the black republic would welcome financial aid from the league which will enable her to shake off her financial bondage.

Ireland's proposal of an American as president of the forthcoming arms conference awoke no echoes at the State Department yesterday. It developed that the department was

BLAZE THREATENS ROOSEVELT'S HOME

SERVES COFFEE TO MEN

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Jan. 22 (A.P.).—Flames attacked the upper portion of Sagamore Hill, home of the late Col. Theodore Roosevelt, tonight and ate their way to within a few yards of the attic armory room housing the famous collection of firearms of the former President of the United States.

With the mercury standing down close to zero and a strong wind adding to their difficulties, firemen fought the blaze and held the estimated damage down to about $1,000.

Mrs. Roosevelt, widow of the colonel, alone in the house with the servants, found the blaze and telephoned an alarm to the village fire department at a few minutes after 8 o'clock.

Two fire companies made the uphill run of about 4 miles to the rather isolated Roosevelt home in 6 minutes flat and found that two fires burned simultaneously, one on each side of the roof, near a chimney, from which they evidently had started.

It was necessary to lay nearly a mile of hose, fire department officers said, when it was apparent that all of the chemicals on the seven pieces of apparatus would be exhausted in the vain effort to avoid using streams of water, so difficult to manage in the bitter cold.

A large number of neighbors, from adjoining estates of the wealthy, and scores of motorists from surrounding towns began to arrive at Sagamore Hill at about the time the firemen finished their task.

When the excitement had subsided Mrs. Roosevelt served coffee and cake to all of the fire fighters and police officers who had kept the crowds back and the narrow road open.

In the attic trophy room immediately beneath the spot where the flames broke out the firearms used by Col. Roosevelt in the Spanish American War, on trips into Africa and when he invaded Brazil to discover the "River of Doubt" were kept.

NEW MILLIONS VOTED TO GIVE NATION RELIEF

Senate Passes Deficiency Bill Carrying Nearly $125,000,000.

$543,370 WOULD GO FOR NEW DRY AGENTS

Aim to Provide $2,700,000 to Rush Memorial Highway Is Defeated.

(Associated Press.)

New millions for immediate employment and drought relief were voted by the Senate yesterday in passing the deficiency bill, carrying almost $125,000,000, to become available immediately.

Chairman Jones of the appropriations committee estimated the funds would provide employment for more than 30,000 persons as soon as the legislation is enacted. The measure goes back to the House for approval of amendments.

Responding to an urgent plea by Senators Barkley, of Kentucky, and Caraway, of Arkansas, both Democrats, Senator Jones accepted an addition of $3,000,000 for medical supplies, to be sent into the drought areas.

Sponsored by Robinson.

The bill authorizing the medical aid fund was sponsored by Senator Robinson (Democrat), Arkansas, and had been approved earlier by the agricultural committee, but had not been passed.

The deficiency bill carries $543,370 for employment of 130 additional prohibition agents. Senator Tydings (Democrat), Maryland, in a severe attack on prohibition enforcement, lost an attempt to strike this out.

The Senate added to the measure more than $20,000,000 for public works, principally in the Navy and Army and in Indian reservations.

It also added $1,000,000, on motion of Senator La Follette (Republican), Wisconsin, to carry out the provisions of the maternity aid act, recently passed by the Senate.

Approval also was given a motion by Senator Wagner (Democrat), New York, to add $40,000 for putting in operation the new law he sponsored for collection of employment statistics.

The deficiency measure was the second supply bill passed by the Senate in as many days.

Senator McNary (Republican), Oregon, made the agriculture appropriation measure the unfinished business at adjournment last night, and it will receive first attention today.

Farm Board Plans Outlined by Legge

Will Not Go Into Market Unless in Emergency, Chairman Says.

(Associated Press.)

Unless a national emergency threatens either the wheat or cotton crop of 1931, the Farm Board will remain out of the market. Chairman Legge said so yesterday, added that he hoped there would be no emergency that would require the stabilization corporations to sid either crop.

Legge declared that if an emergency should arise "the inference is that the board will act." He said the board had reached no decision, however, as to whether it would go into the market.

He cited the action of the board in 1929, when he said it went into the market purposely, but added that in 1930, "when the board had intended to stay out of the market," it was forced in because of a crop disaster.

VOTE IN FRANCE DEFEATS STEEG ON WHEAT PLAN

Overthrow Is Brought by 10-Ballot Margin; Flandin May Form Cabinet.

Paris, Jan. 22 (A.P.).—The French Chamber of Deputies tonight overthrew the government of Premier Theodore Stegg, thereby serving notice that France is not going to pay $2 a bushel for wheat when it is selling for 80 cents in Chicago and around 60 cents in Winnipeg.

The cabinet fell by a vote of 293 against 283, after an existence of five and one-half weeks, and immediately prepared its resignation for submission to President Gaston Doumergue, who accepted it. Tomorrow morning he will begin interviewing political leaders in the quest for a new premier.

A government plan to stabilize the price of wheat at $2 a bushel started the fireworks. When the opposition began gunning for Victor Boret, the minister of agriculture, Premier Steeg staked the life of the entire government in defense of the plan and lost by the narrow margin of ten ballots, after scenes which were tumultous even for the French chamber.

Speculation Charged.

Louis Buyat, a fiery left centrist, opened the attack on the government this morning, giving notice of an interpellation, on "persistent and public disagreement in the ministry, which favors speculation harmful alike to farmers and consumers."

He charged that the government's premature announcement of the scheme promoted speculation and resulted in an increase of 40 cents a hundredweight on wheat during the week.

At first the government did well in the debate, and appeared to have a chance to survive, but the climax came with a vivid talk by Pierre Etienne Flandin, who was minister of commerce in the former government of Andre Tardieu.

Flandin May Be Named.

Flandin painted a dramatic picture of the high price of wheat and bread in Paris, while the commodity is practically going begging in the United States and Canada. This appeared to make a deep impression on the deputies representing cities, who are charged with looking after the interests of the working man as against the farmers, so the government, which began on December 13, was knocked out on January 22.

Since Flandin was responsible for the downfall, it was held likely tonight that he might be asked to form the next cabinet. This, with the Chamber as at present constituted, would be regarded as another temporary government.

Received One Vote.

Today's attack was principally against M. Boret, who as minister of agriculture was responsible for the price-fixing plan.

It had been expected Boret would make the question personal, he alone resigning if the wheat measure were defeated, but Steeg staggered Parliament by his vigorous appeal for support of his minister of agriculture.

When the fallen premier assembled the government on December 13 he was the fourth man chosen by President Gaston Doumergue to attempt succession to Andre Tardieu, who fell December 4. Louis Barthou and Pierre Laval failed to find sufficient support and former Premier Raymond Poincare, who has been seriously ill, declined because of his ill health.

REPUBLICAN LEADERS AT ODDS OVER HOOVER STAND ON DRY REPORT

U. S. Woman Official Is Accused in Swindle

Illinois Politician Blames Her in $50,000 Loss at Faro Game.

Chicago, Jan. 22 (A.P.).—A swindle in which Edward R. Litsinger, wealthy member of the board of review, lost $50,000 advanced in cash to Mrs. Myrtle Tanner Blacklidge, collector of internal revenue at Chicago, became public today with charges by Mr. Litsinger that the woman was to blame for his loss.

Mrs. Blacklidge, admitting she had procured the money from Mr. Litsinger, retorted that she had been bilked of the borrowed cash and paper winings of $207,000 by three men in a faro game at a Springfield (Ill.) hotel, and averred that she was as much a victim of the swindlers as her political friend.

Mr. Litsinger declared in a long statement that he knew nothing of any faro game, but had advanced the money to help her obtain $50,000 due from associates of her late husband in a confidential business.

Mrs. Blacklidge asserted Mr. Litsinger knew she had won the large stakes in faro and was lending her the money to make good a check used as stakes in the game, so she could collect her winnings.

Mrs. Blacklidge was free tonight in Springfield after examination by the State's attorney, while Mr. Litsinger had offered $2,000 reward for the capture of any of the three bunco men into whose clutches his money had been placed at the behest of the woman. Mr. Litsinger announced he would prosecute "every one involved in this crime."

To his accusations that she was to

Beck Says President Has Imperiled Chances of Reelection.

FESS FINDS MESSAGE WAS MISINTERPRETED

Executive Has Not Closed Door to Revision Plans, Is Senator's View.

By EDWARD T. FOLLIARD.

Two stanch Republicans—Senator Fess, of Ohio, and Representative Beck, of Pennsylvania—added fuel to the Wickersham report controversy last night, Mr. Fess by saying that the message of President Hoover had been "misinterpreted," and Mr. Beck by saying that the message of the President had "imperiled the chances of his reelection."

As for the members of the Wickersham Commission themselves, they have stopped talking altogether. One of them—Frank G. Loesch, of Chicago—was scheduled to speak at the Church of the Covenant here last night, but at the last minute he canceled the arrangement.

When President Hoover turned down the Wickersham Commission's proposal for a revision of the eighteenth amendment if enforcement failed, Senator Fess said, he was simply rejecting that particular kind of revision. He was not, the senator said, closing the door to all plans of revision. Mr. Fess added that he thought the President had an "open mind."

Stand Found Disheartening.

Representative Beck, a former Solicitor General and now one of the spokesmen for the wet element of the Republican party, said he had asked the President in 1928 not to express a belief in the eighteenth amendment.

"That he should now, quite unnecessarily, reaffirm that declaration is disheartening to me," Mr. Beck said, "not only as a citizen who is earnestly striving to end the reign of corruption, hypocrisy and oppression, but as a Republican and as one who did his best to secure the nomination and election of President Hoover, and would like to see him serve a second term under more favorable conditions.

"By his uncompromising declaration, the President may not have injured his prospects for a renomination, but in my judgment he has imperilled the chances of his reelection."

See Political Injury.

What Mr. Beck said openly, a great many other wet or moist Republicans have been saying privately, ever since the President disagreed with the Wickersham Commission. Talking "off the record," these men declared that the President had signed his political death warrant.

But there are just as many other Republican politicians here who think no such thing. They sincerely believe that the President's best chance for reelection is to run as an out-and-out dry.

Nevertheless, friends of the President are anxious to remove the "bone dry" brand that was placed on him by political writers after he sent his message to the Capitol last Tuesday.

Particular Plan Rejected.

On Wednesday night the President had a conference with Postmaster General Brown, one of his campaign managers in 1928; Secretary of War Hurley, a keen politician, and Secretary of the Interior Wilbur, an old friend.

After that conference a story went out over the wires to the effect that the President's message had been greatly misinterpreted; that in turning down the commission's suggestion for a revision of the eighteenth amendment the President was simply turning down that particular plan for revision.

Senator Fess, who is chairman of the Republican national committee, had the same thing to say in a statement early yesterday.

OWEN D. YOUNG SEES UPTURN IN BUSINESS

George F. Baker Also Feels Improvement Is Due in Certain Lines.

WHITNEY LAUDS LABOR

New York, Jan. 22 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Signs are not lacking that an upturn in business is near, Owen D. Young said today before the midwinter meeting of the New York State Bankers Association in the Federal Reserve Bank. There has been a pronounced improvement in the attitude of business men between the third week of December and the present, he said. Because of the world-wide effect of conditions in the United States the banking policy of this country must be one of cooperation with other countries, Mr. Young declared.

A similar opinion was expressed today by George F. Baker, veteran chairman of the First National Bank, as he left for his annual vacation in the South.

"There are some indications of improvement on sound lines," he said. It was considered a fairly long statement for him, since it has long been Mr. Baker's belief that bankers talk too much. He is accompanied on his trip by E. E. Loomis, president of the Lehigh Valley Railroad, Mrs. Loomis and a nurse.

Richard Whitney, president of the New York Stock Exchange, speaking after the banquet of the bankers' association in the Hotel Roosevelt, said that he wished to "register his very great admiration for the courage and sound judgment which American labor has exhibited throughout the unemployment crisis. Employes no less than employers have realized that

$11,369,000 DRY LAW BILL VOTED IN HOUSE

Wire-Tapping, Buying Evidence and Additional Agents Included.

SENATE REBUFFS WETS

(Associated Press.)

Prohibition debate blazed high in the House and Senate yesterday, but the flames left scarcely a scar on the measures against which they were directed.

A cordon of House dry votes swung protectingly around the funds allocated by the four-department bill for the various phases of prohibition enforcement and turned back every wet bloc amendment that came to a vote.

On separate votes, the House approved funds for wire tapping, for purchasing alcoholic evidence and for undercover agents. It then gave approval to $11,369,500 for the Prohibition Bureau for the next fiscal year.

In the Senate an effort by Senator Tydings (Democrat), Maryland, an antiprohibitionist, to strike from the deficiency appropriation bill a fund for additional prohibition agents failed without a record vote.

An increase from 1,400 to 1,900 prohibition agents was allowed by the House. It rejected a proposal to prevent use of funds for prosecution of dispensers of malt and home-made intoxicating beer.

The wet forces marshaled the most votes against the measure they have in years, but only succeeded in having eliminated a provision for $50,000 for dry propaganda purposes. This was done on a point of order raised by Representative La Guardia (Republican), New York.

Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt was assailed by Representative Clan-

'Man in Green Hat' Called To Serve on District Jury

George L. Cassiday, "the Man in the Green Hat," who gained notoriety as a congressional bootlegger, yesterday was summoned for jury duty in District Supreme Court.

Cassiday was convicted several months ago on a Jones act charge in the same court and is now under sentence to serve eighteen months in jail and pay a fine of $2,000. Early last week he filed his brief in his appeal, claiming the Government had prosecuted him illegally.

The jury summons was served on Cassiday at his home, 303 Seventeenth street southeast.

The fact that Cassiday was called for jury service is expected to precipitate a fight on Capitol Hill in regard to the present District jury system. It has been under attack for more than a year and every grand jury that returns an indictment finds that the attorneys for the defendants are cognizant of certain flaws in the eligibility of certain jurors.

Cassiday is expected to report on the first Monday in February, when his subpena demands his presence, and to assert his right to serve on the jury, since he has no legal bar against him.

Cassiday, according to court records, has served 90 days in jail on a police court sentence and 90 days on a District Supreme Court sentence.

In neither instance was moral turpitude involved, it having been the policy to carry liquor cases to the District Supreme Court before the Jones act, and when only a one-year sentence was the maximum.

The Jones act case is a felony, and

Calvin Coolidge Says:

Mostly because of developments in some foreign countries we find considerable discussion of whether democracy is not proving a failure. Very great things have been expected of that form of government. The oratory that has been expended in its glorification has not all been found to be justified. No informed student of human affairs ever expected that democracy would be a sovereign remedy for all the ills with which mortals are beset. But the principle of self-government, applied insofar as the development of a people will admit of its application, remains as the best solution of social relations.

In times of national peril, whether military or economic, it has been found necessary to modify the application of the principle in the interest of expedition and solidarity. That has been done in some European countries but it is a temporary expedient. Self-government is the expression of one of the strongest and most logical aspirations of human nature. There is no other system that is consistent with freedom. In the end it will prevail because it is everlastingly right. The character of our people is the best guarantee of its success in the United States.

Egg Shower Answers Rudy As He Pleads for Souvenir

"Give Me Something to Remember You By," He Croons, and—Wham! Boston Collegians Reply With Erring Aim as the Melody Lingers On.

Boston, Jan. 22 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Rudy Vallee, the crooning troubadour, was concluding his act at the final show tonight at the Metropolitan, largest motion picture house in New England, with the rendition of a hortatory ballad entitled "Give Me Something to Remember You By."

His exhortations were not in vain. A group of college boys scattered about the audience, as though at a given signal, let off in Vallee's direction with a barrage of eggs—eggs of a certain age.

The singer, with scarcely a quaver, continued his song to the end, while the fragile missils whizzed by him to the left and right. None hit him, but the drummer in his orchestra, who had the misfortune to be sitting behind him, found first his cymbals and later himself spattered with that ooze that only a ripe egg can impart.

As he finished the audience gave him a vociferous hand and Rudy responded with a little speech in which he told how "discouraging" it is to give four of five shows a day in an attempt to please the public and then have his efforts rewarded in such a fashion. He reminded his audience that those who did not care for his work were not obliged to remain in the theater.

So great was the applause at his remarks that he was forced to give two encores—during which policemen went through the audience and removed three young men, whom they took to police headquarters for questioning.

ate action on his resolution to clea up the mystery he sees as connecte with the Wickersham report, but Ma jority Leader Watson blocked hi move.

Tydings then moved to strike ou of the first deficiency bill an iten of $543,370 for the hire of more pro hibition agents, but on this he los on a viva voce vote.

"You can get millions for more en forcement," Tydings shouted, "but not a cent for the sick, the depressed and the farmers."

Fess Questions Interpretation.

Senator Fess made two statements in the course of the day, the last one a bit more cautious than the first Early in the day he said that the President, while he had turned down one particular plan for revision, had not closed the door to all plans.

Later he dictated another one, saying it expressed his own personal views. It follows:

"The President's message was very gratifying to me, and I congratulated him on it when I saw him today. I think that the general interpretation of the newspapers was not justified in what they said about the President's reference to the commission's recommendations.

Disappointed in Report.

"He does not want to be considered as favoring the particular recommendation of a revised eighteenth amendment. I assume the reason to be that it would put the prohibition question in politics every two years.

"The summary of the commission's report was the only thing I had read up to the time the report came to the Senate.

"I was greatly pleased with the general tenor of it. I was tremendously disappointed after reading the body of the report."

Called "Wicked Sham."

Representative Beck said that the report of the Wickersham Commission was the "most damning indictment of the eighteenth amendment of which I have knowledge." But the commission itself, he said, should be called the "Wicked Sham Commission" when it issues a report signed by ten eminent citizens, "a majority of whom by individual reports reject the more important conclusions of the report to which they have subscribed their names."

Mr. Beck said that the report, however, has "substantially advanced the day of our emancipation."

"Possibly," he said, "the very diffuseness of the commission's report was to conceal its obvious purpose to destroy the eighteenth amendment."

Crusader Makes Bitter Attack on Dry Report

Chicago, Jan. 22 (A.P.).—Renaming the Wickersham report as the "Likkersham Review," Mrs. Carroll Miller, of Pittsburgh, Pa., declared that it represented two year's wasted time. Bitterly criticizing it before members of the ways and means committee of the Crusaders Association, she said there wasn't enough new facts in the report to make it worth while.

"Any intelligent person could have written it on the spur of the moment two years ago," she said.

Mr. LaGuardia defended Mrs. Willebrandt on her prison activities, declaring she had eliminated orgies staged by prison officials and had stopped roadhouse parties at which officials took prisoners. He opposed her wire tapping activities, he said.

Representative Blanton, of Texas, a Democratic prohibitionist, defended the use of undercover agents as "absolutely necessary."

Representative Beck (Republican), Pennsylvania, strongly opposed the use of funds for wire tapping, declaring the practice "violated the fundamental decencies of human life."

Representative Oliver (Democrat), Alabama, a prohibitionist, replied that it was necessary to prevent big criminal conspirators from using public utilities.

Senate Favors $10,000 For Senators' Widows

Payment of $10,000 each to the widows of Senator Lee S. Overman (Democrat), of North Carolina, and Senator Frank L. Greene (Republican), of Vermont, is provided for in the urgent deficiency bill passed by the Senate yesterday.

Both senators died while serving in the Senate. Senator Overman was an elderly man. Senator Greene died as a result of bullet wounds suffered at the hands of Federal prohibition agents while he was walking along Pennsylvania avenue. He never recovered his health after being shot.

Education Group Lists 10,507Membership Rise

The year 1930 saw an increase of 10,507 in the membership of the National Education Association, bringing the total enrollemnt to 216,168, it has been announced by J. W. Crabtree, executive secretary.

"The larger membership in the association is due to increased professional spirit," said Mr. Crabtree, "and the desire to cooperate in the solution of educational problems that are Nation-wide." The association will move into its new seven-story building at Sixteenth and M streets about March 15.

Majority of Commissioners Held in Accord With Unions' Position.

NO COMMENT BY GREEN

Miami, Fla., Jan. 22 (A.P.).—Ira N. Ornburn, secretary of labor's committee for the modification of the Volstead act, said in a report submitted today to President William Green of the American Federation of Labor, that "the report of the Wickersham Commission registers distinct progress in the return to sanity and temperance."

"While we join in the belief that the commissioners might well have come to a more harmonious position," the report said, "we nevertheless can not fail to be deeply impressed by the fact that so many seem to have overlooked, which is, that of the eleven commissioners only two can be said to stand unreservedly for the present condition.

"All of the commissioners except two recommended some form of change, ranging from modification to absolute repeal of the eighteenth amendment. We may say, therefore, that the vast majority—perhaps a totally unexpected majority—record themselves as in favor of our position.

"As a matter of fact, it is our opinion that the report itself, by holding that if the eighteenth amendment is changed it should be changed to give Congress the power to regulate or prohibit, is a distinct advance, because by so recommending the commission itself takes most serious account of the present intolerable conditions, and suggests that perhaps a change in the amendment may be found necessary.

"Concededly there is great confusion among them (the commissioners) as to precisely what should be done. But it does not seem too much to say that the overwhelming agreement that something must be done, in the way of change, is the most important contribution toward solution that has come to us since creation of this crime-breeding, freedom-destroying condition that was born out of a state of mind, thrown out of its course by the World War.

"It is encouraging * * * to be able to report so soon after the action of the executive council, announced by you during these meetings, looking toward the organizing of our forces for a concentrated, constructive and final campaign for modification, true American temperance and a return to a proper concept of freedom under the American Constitution."

Mr. Green made no comment on Mr. Ornburn's report.

Hearing on Bus-Control Proposal Planned Soon

A date for the public hearing on the plan to drive interstate buses out of the congested area of Washington, will probably be set by the District Commissioners in the next few days, it was said yesterday, in line with earlier announcements.

The corporation counsel's office is now preparing a new regulation stating what the boundaries of the congested area shall be. The hearing will be held before these are definitely established, however.

House Physician Issues Warning

Rules Given for Prevention of Spread of Respiratory Diseases.

Commander George W. Calver, of the United States Navy, physician of the House of Representatives, yesterday issued his first public health proclamation for the guidance of Capitol workers and visitors.

His commandments were printed on a card hung in elevators and other public places. The card was headed in large type with a red "Warning." For prevention of the spread of respiratory diseases, the placard laid down the following rules:

Do not use common drinking cups, towels or tableware. Avoid crowded or overheated places. Get plenty of nourishing food and fresh air. Avoid excessive fatigue. Keep away from people who are coughing or sneezing. Use a handkerchief if you cough or sneeze, and keep away from other people. Go home, go to bed, and call your family physician if you feel chilly or have a fever. Early treatment limits disease. Pneumonia and other serious complications can be avoided by staying in bed after the fever is broken.

HOOVER PARTY VIEWS ARLINGTON MEMORIAL BRIDGE

CONTROL ROOM VISITED

President Hoover yesterday inspected the nearly completed memorial bridge which spans the Potomac River between the Lincoln Memorial and the Robert E. Lee home in the Arlington National Cemetery.

He was accompanied by Vice President Curtis, Speaker Longworth, Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant 3d and others connected with the huge project.

The President stood in the middle of the bridge and watched the giant spans operated. Then he went to the control rooms of the bridge to watch the machinery slowly and soundlessly lower the two giant leaves of the bascule bridge.

The control rooms are in the central pier of the bridge, partly below the water line of the river. They are reached by a stairway leading down from the bridge surface. The President and the inspection group then walked to the Virginia side, where the bridge enters near Arlington Cemetery, at the base of the hill on which the Lee mansion stands.

After the inspection the President returned to his desk at the White House. His only comment on the trip was, "It is a massive project."

License for Power Upheld by Court

Commission's Grant in Alaska Declared No Conspiracy.

Justice Jesse C. Adkins in District Supreme Court yesterday upheld the right of the Federal Power Commission to issue to I. and J. B. Zellerbach, of San Francisco, a license for a power development on 480 acres of land in Tnogass National Forest in Alaska. The opinion was handed down in denying an injunction sought by J. T. Jones, of Tacoma, Wash., to restrain the power commission from issuing the license.

Jones claimed that Secretary of the Interior Ray Lyman Wilbur, Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley and Secretary of Agriculture Anthony M. Hyde had conspired to defeat his claim to the land and to grant a license to the Zellerbachs to operate a power project on his property. Justice Adkins held there was no evidence of conspiracy.

Autogyro Is Purchased By Navy Department

(Associated Press.)

The Navy has purchased its first autogyro—a clipt wing Pitcairn airplane, with a windmill type of propeller whirring over the fuselage.

"I consider the development of the autogyro of great importance to aviation and have been very desirous of obtaining one for the Navy," said David S. Ingalls, Assistant Secretary of the Navy for Aeronautics, in announcing the purchase. It will be tested for possible use in observation work. Experiments will be made to determine the value of the plane in small landing spaces on land and for landings aboard the carrier Langley.

MONEY PAPER FIRM CALLED DISHONEST

Cranes Could Manufacture Stronger Currency, Says Chairman Wood.

ASKS $1,000,000 PLANT

(Associated Press.)

The company that makes paper for the currency was accused of "dishonesty and unfairness" in testimony yesterday before the House expenditures committee. Chairman Wood, of the House appropriations committee, asked approval of his bill by which $1,000,000 would be authorized for construction of a Government paper mill.

The Indianan attacked policies of the Crane Co., a Massachusetts concern, which has supplied more paper for currency than any other concern.

"Crane has not been honest with the Government," he said.

Mr. Wood charged samples of paper submitted to the Bureau of Standards for examination brought the report that Crane could have made the paper from three to five times as strong with the same material used. He contended the company makes low bids to drive out of business smaller competitors and then fails to provide paper of the quality desired.

Mr. Wood urged approval of his bill so the process by which paper for currency is made may be kept secret, enabling introduction of chemicals which would disclose counterfeit money. He said he believed in six months a Government plant would pay for itself by eliminating excessive profits now made by private concerns.

Mr. Wood asserted the life of the dollar bill is six months, but the Bureau of Standards had found paper made of the same materials but stronger which would last nine months.

Tax Collections Here Show Gain

District Income for First Half of Fiscal Year Up $485,949.

District tax collections for the first half of the fiscal year amounted to $485,949.78 more than for the corresponding period in 1930, Tax Collector Chatham M. Towers revealed yesterday. The respective figures were $17,795,712.55 and $17,309,762.77.

Collections for last month, not counting the personal taxes paid during that time for 1931 automobile license tags, were $1,825,798.12, as compared with $1,305,991.53 for December, 1929.

So far the receipts from the automobile licenses, including both the personal tax and the $1 fe, have reached $523,901.63 from more than 105,000 cars.

SENATORS WILL QUIZ MEYER ONCE MORE

BROOKHART BACKS PLAN

(Associated Press.)

The Senate yesterday sent the nomination of Eugene Meyer, jr., as Governor of the Federal Reserve Board, back to committee for investigation of charges lodged against him.

Senator Brookhart (Republican), Iowa, urging such action, said Mr. Meyer had been accused of a plot to destroy the joint stock land banks and several of these had closed.

Chairman Norbeck of the banking committee, to which the nomination was referred, called a meeting for today. He said the subcommittee probably would be appointed to make the inquiry.

Mr. Meyer's friends in the Senate stoutly defended him, but agreed to the recommittal in order that the charges might be given a full hearing.

Two Opposition Votes.

The nomination was approved by the banking committee before Christmas with only two opposition votes. It has been pending on the Senate calendar ever since.

Mr. Brookhart said he had been denied an opportunity to call Meyer before the banking committee for a hearing of the charges.

Mr. Norbeck denied this, asserting Mr. Brookhart had never made a motion to bring Meyer before the committee.

"He did talk a lot about it, but he never pressed the matter," Mr. Norbeck said.

Recommitment Is Asked.

Other senators, however, expressed surprise that the right of a member of a committee to interrogate a nominee should be questioned. In the face of this attitude Mr. Norbeck asked that the nomination be recommitted.

Several of Mr. Meyer's friends said he was "the best man that could be found for the position to which he was nominated, but agreed the nominee himself would want to have Mr. Brookhart's charges investigated.

Mr. Brookhart said considerable new evidence had come to his attention since the committee had acted. He read to the Senate a letter from Chairman McFadden, of the House banking committee, asking for an inquiry into the circumstances surrounding Mr. Meyer's appointment.

Mr. Brookhart said he would ask that witnesses suggested by Mr. McFadden be called along with witnesses in connection with Mr. Meyer's policies toward the joint stock land banks.

Bill to Restrict Aliens Approved

Immigration Reduced 90 Per Cent Two Years in Measure.

(Associated Press).

The Free bill to restrict immigration for two years as an unemployment measure was approved yesterday by the House immigration committee. The measure, along lines suggested by Secretary Stimson, reduces immigration from European countries by 90 per cent of existing quotas.

It would permit only 10 per cent of the immigrants who entered from Western Hemisphere countries during the last fiscal year to enter during each of the next two years.

It also would limit immigration from the Philippine Islands to the mainland to 500 annually. However, it would permit Philippine immigration from the Island to Hawaii under existing Labor Department regulations.

It would permit American employers to import a maximum of 300 artisans a year where they could not be obtained in this country.

CONTROL ADVOCATED OF BOOTLEG BANKING

Gov. Harrison Suggests Way to Check Flow of Credit for Speculation.

(Associated Press.)

Voluntary control of what was termed a "bootleg banking system" was advocated before the Senate banking investigating committee yesterday by George L. Harrison, governor of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, as a means of checking the flow of credit for stock speculation. Harrison described the "bootleg" system as one under which individuals and corporations, attracted by high rates on ready money, have banks loan money for them to brokers on stock exchange collateral.

J. Herbert Case, chairman of the board of the New York Reserve Bank, said such loans rose from $1,500,000,000 to $5,500,000,000 before the collapse of the market in 1929, and since they were not bank funds it was difficult to control the speculation movement at that time.

Would Check "Loans for Others."

Harrison said if the Federal Reserve rediscount rate is to be an effective means of controlling credit for speculation something must be done to check these "loans to others." He preferred this to be brought about by agreement between New York banks and the stock exchange rather than by law.

Case told of demands on the Federal Reserve mechanism for bank reserves following the stock market crash in October, 1929, and for currency after last December's emergency, and said the system was found adequate to meet both emergencies.

When stock prices broke in late October, 1929, he said, the individual and corporation money lenders became alarmed and promptly withdrew their funds—about $2,500,000,000—in two weeks.

Banks Prevent Panic.

"To prevent a panic, the New York banks stepped in and replaced as much of these funds as was necessary," he said. "But the New York banks found it necessary in meeting this demand to increase their own loans, both to brokers and directly to customers, by $1,500,000,000.

"With this increase in loans, went a corresponding increase in deposits," he added, "and consequently a sizable increase in reserve requirements. In fact these banks suddenly found themselves in a single week in need of $200,000,000 additional reserve funds. This emergency demand was met promptly, about half by borrowing at the reserve bank and half by funds supplied voluntarily by the reserve banks by purchase of Government securities.

"The smoothness with which this operation went through is indicated by the fact that there was no major disturbance in money markets."

Other Speculations Noted.

Case listed the "intensive speculation in farm lands in the Middle and Far West during and after the war," the "unprecedented speculation in Florida real estate," and the "culmination of the bull stock market in the autumn of 1929," as conditions which "in large measures are undoubtedly responsible for the great number of bank closures."

"These three movements," he said, "have each in turn culminated as they inevitably must in a deflation resulting in falling values; so that during the past year there has been the most drastic liquidation in values of which we have any record in times of peace."

Questioned by H. Parker Willis, committee expert, Case said the management of the Bank of the United States, a State institution now under investigation in New York City, "did not have our confidence for a period of years."

Board Hits Farm Loan Extensions

(Associated Press.)

Opposition of the Federal Farm Loan Board to extensions or suspensions of installments and interest on money borrowed by farmers was taken under consideration yesterday by the House banking committee.

Paul Bestor, farm loan commissioner, testifying on pending relief measures, said operators of the Federal land and intermediate credit banks are "fully able" now to defer payments where the conditions warrant. "The opinion of the board," he said, "is that such legislation would destroy the collection programs of the banks."

Representative Steagall (Democrat), Alabama, interposed that some land banks were sending out "notices that the farmers have got to pay." He contended there should be some liberalization of policy. Mr. Bestor opposed a pending bill which would authorize the transfer of $5,000,000 to the Federal Farm Loan Bureau to pay interest on outstanding loans so maturity dates could be extended.

$1,190,397 in Aircraft Contracts Awarded

(Associated Press).

Award of aircraft and engine contracts aggregating $1,190,397 for the Army Air Corps was announced yesterday by Assistant Secretary Davison, of the War Department.

One was to the Curtiss Aeroplane and Motor Co., Garden City, Long Island, N. Y., for 30 observation planes, costing $366,495. Two aggregating $855,574 went to the Wright Aeronautical Corporation, Paterson, N. J., for 118 engines for planes.

Ways to Avoid Influenza Are Listed by Dr. Cumming

Eight Hours' Sleep, Moderate Mixed Diet, Warm Clothing, Plenty of Fresh Air Required; "Go to Bed" First Step in Cure.

(Associated Press.)

The influenza situation prompted Surgeon General Cumming, of the Public Health Service, yesterday to "emphasize anew public precautions and personal hygiene practices upon which its prevention depends."

"Go home and go to bed," was laid down as the "keynote rule" in its check and cure.

"Call the doctor," came next, but rules also were given in case the doctor couldn't come.

They were: "Remain in bed, eat a simple diet, take plenty of fluids such as water, fruit juices, milk, bouillon and hot soups at frequent intervals.

Influenza itself, he emphasized, is not fatal—the pneumonia which often follows it is often fatal.

Rest was stressed as most important.

"Remain in bed until all symptons have disappeared and then, under the physician's advice, return very gradually to usual physical activities, being sure to rest before becoming tired," was the surgeon general's prescription.

For the able-bodied he prescribed:

Eight to ten hours sleep every night with windows open under warm covers.

Eating a moderate mixed diet and drinking six to eight glasses of pure water daily.

Wearing clothing warm enough to prevent chilling of body surfaces.

Avoiding people with colds, especially those sneezing or coughing, since contact with those just beginning to feel sick is more dangerous than those ill enough to be confined in bed.

Keep out of crowds in closed places.

Avoid use of common utensils.

Wash the hands frequently, and especially before eating.

Avoid the use of any "so-called preventives—vaccines, sera and advertised preventives seem to be of no value and may be harmful in this disease."

Avoid alcohol and stimulants of all sorts.

Walk to work if possible and keep as much as you can in the open air.

Austrian, 60, Tells Strange Story After 225-Mile Hike

Joseph Znava's swollen feet are getting back to normal only, perhaps, to tread once more the dreary halls of an insane asylum from which he says he escaped.

An attache of the Austrian Legation interviewed the 60-year-old subject of that country yesterday at the summons of Seventh Precinct police, at whose station Znava is held. No disclosure was made as to what action may be taken by the legation.

The subject of these complications plodded wearily into the station Wednesday night and told police how he had walked from Somerset, Pa., 225 miles away, to lay his troubles before the United States Supreme Court. Five days and five nights it took, he said, sleeping in haystacks when he paused to take the time. Of food there was little.

When he reached the station his feet were wrapped in burlap sacks and his shoes he carried in his hands. Too big, Znava muttered in broken English, pointing at his pedal extremities.

After spending Wednesday night at the station under a charge of investigation, the wanderer awoke yesterday to elaborate on his story, with the result that he was booked as a fugitive from a county institution. He claims he spent four years in the asylum, being committed there because he claimed back pay for work as a miner.

Znava declared that, although he has been in this country 25 years, he has not become naturalized. As a young man he served in the Austrian army under Emperor Franz Josef, he said, adding that he left a wife, son and daughter behind when he came to this country.

WALSH WANTS COURT TO END POWER ROW

GIVES VARIOUS RULINGS

(Associated Press.)

The Senate was called upon yesterday by Senator Walsh (Democrat), Montana, to go to court in its dispute with President Hoover over the return of the nominations of three members of the Power Commission.

Assailing the position taken by Mr. Hoover, that he was without authority to return the nominations after they had been confirmed and the members had assumed office, Senator Walsh told the Senate he was prepared to ask the district attorney to institute proceedings.

Walsh first moved to refer the nominations, which the Senate has placed back on its calendar, to the interstate commerce committee for investigation.

If the Senate approves that action Walsh said he would offer a resolution to have the Senate direct the district attorney here to institute quo warranto action to test the right of the three commissioners—Chairman Smith, Marcel Garsaud and Claude L. Draper—to hold office.

The Senate's previous vote to reconsider the nominations and request President Hoover to return them carried by a majority of seven. Action was deferred on the Walsh motion of yesterday that work might go ahead on the appropriation bills, but administration leaders believed the coalition of Democrats and Republican independents which voted for reconsideration would vote for further action.

Walsh gave court decisions to support his contention that the Senate was within its right in demanding reconsideration within two legislative days after confirmation, as provided by the Senate rules.

Chairman Couzens, of the interstate commerce committee, said if the nominations were referred to his committee he would await the court action proposed by Walsh.

Senator Borah (Republican), Idaho, suggested the Senate go ahead and formally reject the nominations before seeking court action.

Prohibition's Foes Have Spent $853,860

(Associated Press.)

The Association Against the Prohibition Amendment reported to the House clerk yesterday it spent $853,860 in 1930.

Receipts for the same period, exclusive of loans, were given at $711,381. The loans totaled $112,000. Among the larger items listed as disbursements were $47,689 for postage and $25,822 to Henry H. Curran, president, of the association.

Contributors during the last two months of the year included Archibald M. L. Du Pont, of Wilmington, Del, $100; Eugene E. Du Pont, Greenville, Del., $300; Waldo Newcomer, Baltimore, $5,000; W. E. Norvell, jr., Nashville, $2,000. Total receipts for the two months were given as $28,295.

James Bill Increases West Point Alternates

A bill to increase the number of alternates for appointment as cadets to West Point was introduced in the House yesterday by Representative W. Frank James (Republican), Michigan, chairman of the military affairs committee.

The bill would not increase the authorized enrollment, but probably would increase the number of cadets, because, Mr. James said, there usually are about 100 vacancies through failure of nominees and alternates to pass physical and mental entrance examinations. The additional alternates would be named by members of Congress, as at present.

GRUNDY RACE STIFF FIGHT, NYE IS TOLD

Pennsylvania Politicians Are Heard by Committee Investigating Davis.

SENATOR TOO POPULAR

(Associated Press.)

The Nye campaign funds committee yesterday heard that while the main Pennsylvania contest in the last campaign was for governor, the Grundy forces made it a stiff race for senator.

Six witnesses appeared, four county committee members, one an official of the Pennsylvania State Republican committee and the sixth a commission investigator. The committee is investigating expenditures in behalf of Senator Davis, of Pennsylvania.

Not Much Money Needed.

The five Pennsylvanians—A. Boyd Hamilton, assistant Republican State chairman; W. C. Klein, Coudersport; King Gilliland, Franklin; Harry S. Perry, Pittsburgh, and A. H. Letzler, Houtzdale—told the committee Davis' popularity in Pennsylvania made unnecessary expenditures of much money to further his campaign. They said the primary opposition of former Senator Joseph R. Grundy to Davis' nomination was not to be considered a contest.

Hamilton, while stating the main primary contest was for the governorship, said he and others had waged a strong campaign for Grundy.

"We went out to sell Uncle Joe to the voters," Hamilton said. "Mr. Grundy was in the fight and he's a pretty good little spender."

Senator Patterson (Republican), of Missouri, and Chairman Nye disagreed twice during the day, taking up considerable time in discussions of testimony.

Nye Is Overruled.

The first disagreement came when Nye attempted to insert in the record a New York Times story saying the senatorial race was "anybody's fight." The second was over Patterson's pressing a question regarding statements R. N. McFarland, an investigator, had made to the committee.

Nye was overruled on the newspaper article when Senator Dale (Republican), Vermont, sided with Patterson, and McFarland, defended by Nye, stuck to a statement that he did not recall what statement he may have made earlier.

Bill to Amend District Code Sent to Congress

The District Commissioners yesterday sent to Congress a bill to amend chapter 15 of the Code of Laws for the District so as to enable the District government to proceed with its building program notwithstanding pending appeals from street condemnations.

The code was changed by act of Congress in March, 1929, but the right of the District to take title to property already condemned, pending the appeal, was found to be indefinite.

MRS. CRATER FINDS WILL OF HUSBAND

APARTMENT IS SEARCHED

New York, Jan. 22 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—In addition to the $6,690 cash, the farewell note and insurance policies found by Mrs. Joseph F. Crater, wife of the mysteriously missing Supreme Court justice, it suddenly developed today that Mrs. Crater had also discovered in the same drawer a will in which Crater left all his property to her.

The discovery of the will, dated in 1926, was confirmed today by Ralph O. L. Fay, attorney for Mrs. Crater. Earlier in the day Lieut. Hugh Sheridan and Detectives Owens and Lowenthal and three patrolmen had inspected her apartment and learned from her about the will.

Mr. Fay expressed surprise that the finding of the will had not previously been announced, since he had turned over an entire list of what was found in the drawer to the office of District Attorney Crain. Mr. Crain, however, said he had not heard of any will being found and recalled no mention of it in the list of documents in his possession. This discrepancy was explained elsewhere by the surmise that the existence of the will may not have been brought to Mr. Crain's attention in the rush of other important discoveries in the Crater case.

The will, Mr. Fay said, was a brief document of less than 300 words, simply naming Mrs. Crater as sole beneficiary and appointing her executrix.

Jury Deadlocked In De Boe Case

Unable to Agree on Guilt or Innocence of Clara Bow Aid in 25 Hours.

Los Angeles, Calif., Jan. 22 (A.P.).—Ending 25½ hours deliberation, the jury considering the case of Daisy De Boe told the court at 4:30 p. m. today it had been unable to reach a verdict. Judge William Doran told the talesmen to retire for further deliberation.

The jury returned again to the courtroom at 5:40 p. m. and the court inquired if it had arrived at a verdict.

"We have not," Boynton replied.

"Do you think it will be possible to reach a verdict?" the court asked.

"I don't think so, your honor."

Then each member was asked and in turn they shook their heads negatively or replied, "I don't think so."

Judge Doran dismissed the jurors for dinner, telling them he would give them testimony they desired upon their return.

Meeting to Study Jobless Problem

Stabilization to Be Discussed by Conference Here This Month.

Stabilization of industry as a cure for unemployment will be discussed from various angles at the opening sessions of the national conference on permanent preventives of unemployment, to be held Monday and Tuesday, January 26 and 27, at the Hamilton Hotel.

A feature of this phase of the discussions will be an authoritative explanation of the so-called "Cincinnati Plan" of combatting unemployment by Fred Hoehler, director of public welfare of Cincinnati. The steps taken as early as 1929 by this Ohio city to forestall unemployment so impressed President Hoover's unemployment committee that special information was issued about it. The topic of Mr. Hoehler's address will be "What a Municipal Government Can Do."

The conference is under auspices of the National Catholic Welfare Conference, the Central Conference of American Rabbis and the Federal Council of Churches.

completion of the George Washington Memorial highway, along the banks of the Potomac to Mount Vernon, was defeated in the Senate yesterday by Senator Howell (Republican), Nebraska.

The amount had been added to the deficiency bill as it passed the House. It was incorporated in a Senate appropriations committee amendment, which was explained by Senator Jones (Republican), Washington, chairman of the committee.

Senator Jones said it was desired to have the highway completed in time for use in 1932 when the bicentennial celebration of Washington is to be observed here.

Land Purchase Urged.

When objection arose Senator Jones offered an amendment which provided that none of the money should be used for purchase of land along the highway, but this was objected to, opponents having argued that to delay purchase of requisite land until the highway had been completed and hot dog stands and other unsightly things were built along the road would mean materially increased cost to the Government when it tried to buy land or to take it by condemnation.

Senator Jones brought the discussion to a close with the statement that the entire amendment was subject to a point of order. Senator Howell immediately made the point. Senator Moses (Republican), New Hampshire, presiding, sustained the point and the amendment was stricken from the bill.

The bill also carried a Senate amendment providing $520,900 for cemeteries. Improvements contemplated in this appropriation include revision of the road system of Arlington Cemetery and construction of an administration building there.

3 NATIONAL LEADERS IN RED CROSS PLEAS

Hoover, Coolidge and Smith Appeal Over Radio for $10,000,000 Fund.

RELIEF BILL IS DELAYED

which this appeal is made is such that it comes down to a bare proposal in the name of humanity that those who have something shall share it with those who have nothing. Those who have must give and give without delay."

Although the immediate picture of distress is not as vivid as it might be had a tornado, flood or earthquake hit some large portion of the population, Mr. Coolidge declared the suffering nevertheless "just as intense and the need for relief just as urgent as though some great calamity had struck down the means of livelihood over a large area in a single day."

From New York came the voice of Mr. Smith, Democratic candidate for President in the last election, speaking now in harmony with Mr. Hoover on the one issue on which there is no party line.

Disaster Common Concern.

Some may have found a certain irony in a situation that brought Mr. Hoover and Mr. Smith, political enemies in one of the bitterest presidential campaigns in history, together and speaking to a common end, on the same radio program.

"Disaster to any one section of the country should be the concern of us all," said Mr. Smith. "The Red Cross can drive the wolf of hunger from the door but the American people must stand behind the Red Cross. They must provide the means and the American Red Cross will provide the ways."

Mr. Smith reminded his hearers of the service performed by the Red Cross "in the dark days of '17 and '18."

"Today a large portion of our country is suffering from a drought. Lands have not produced, live stock is threatened with starvation and hungry women and children are looking to the Red Cross. The Red Cross is already bringing relief to the stricken areas in so constructive a way as to help the people affected to help themselves and is strengthening and encouraging those who receive Red Cross aid."

Makes Simple Appeal.

He concluded his address with a simple appeal.

Chairman Payne, of the Red Cross, told the radio audience that the pride of the American people is at stake.

"Hunger speaks a common language," he said, "and surely we can all understand that. Surely we can all understand the plight of those who have families of children, with nothing to eat."

The speaker said that in the last two weeks the demand upon the Red Cross has more than doubled.

Mary Pickford Speaks.

Miss Mary Pickford supplied "the woman's voice in this group of Americans who have answered the President's call."

"It is the time for the strong to aid the weak," said Miss Pickford, "for the thinking men and women of America to form a solid block behind the unselfish workers of the Red Cross."

"It is not the babies of Belgium, not the starving Armenian, not the Russian Relief that brings me to this appeal," said the famous star, "but the men and women and children, particularly the children, of our own America.

"Flood and fire and drought are fearsome giants, but we know now that many of our fellow workers in America are faced with hunger in the middle of winter."

Will Rogers, speaking from Little Rock, Ark., one of the most seriously affected points in the drought-ridden regions, appealed for aid in his usual humorous vein.

"I thought there would be a great many serious appeals," he said, "and maybe I better make mine kind of light and frothy, so I have decided to read the Wickersham report to you."

Should Worry About Starving.

He said he was having the bellboys of his hotel bring the report up.

"That will solve the unemployment problem, having the bellboys bring that report up here. This is not the one you read. This is another one we are getting out to explain what they meant in the last report."

What the members of the commission "said collectively they denied individually," Rogers said.

"I am old-fashioned enough to believe we ought to be worrying where our poor folks are going to get something to eat instead of worrying where the rich ones are going to get something to drink."

You don't know what hard times are, said the famous humorist, until you see the condition of the "renter farmer."

"He don't have to have drought to be hard up. He is hard up all of the time."

Mrs. Belmont Opposes Bill.

Opposition to the Senate's proposal to give the Red Cross $25,000,000 was voiced by Mrs. August Belmont, member of the central committee of the Red Cross.

"I would like to submit that I believe this form of supplying funds should not be resorted to until the people fail to meet voluntarily the requirements confronting them," she said.

"Relief of this nature, voluntarily extended, ensuing upon wide public participation is by far the best for our people, both those who are relieved and those who extend a helping hand.

"A campaign for this money through the agencies of the Red Cross is bound to arouse interest and determination which in the large will far outdo any possible enthusiasm which can be expected from legislative enactment."

She said it was too much to ask the Red Cross "wisely and justly" to distribute $25,000,000, designed not for drought relief alone, but for Nation-wide aid. She said the gift could "hardly fail to jeopardize" the "voluntary spirit" of the Red Cross.

"Amos and Andy" also spoke on the relief program, and Frieda Hempel sang. A contribution of $5,000 was made today by Rogers, who asked that half of the sum be devoted to Oklahoma relief work, and the other half to Arkansas. Rogers is from Oklahoma.

Leaders Doubt Defeat.

Meanwhile, commenting on the House postponement of action on the Senate's $25,000,000 appropriation for Red Cross relief work, administration leaders expressed doubt that they could defeat the measure if it ever comes to a vote in the House. The Red Cross complains the bill is interfering with the campaign for funds.

Wichita New Capone Field, Legislator Says

Topeka, Kans., Jan. 22 (A.P.).—Representative Donald Muir, of Harper County, told the Kansas House of Representatives today that Al Capone has entered the liquor business in Wichita, Kans.

Mr. Muir said the Chicago gangster had notified Wichita bootleggers they could "buy his liquor or get out of business."

The assertion was made during debate on Muir's bill to restore capital punishment for first-degree murder, kidnaping and robbery with firearms. The House recommended the measure for passage, subject to a final roll-call vote.

M'GUGIN TO OPPOSE G.O.P. ON OIL TARIFF

Member of Next House to Demand New Line-Up if Move Fails.

KANSAN IS NOT TO BOLT

Coffeyville, Kans., Jan. 22 (A.P.).—Blaming Speaker Longworth and other Republican House leaders for side-tracking a vote on proposals for an oil tariff, Representative-elect Harold McGugin, of the third Kansas district, said today he would vote for a new Republican lineup in the next House if the present Congress failed to act.

"The current report is that I recently made the public statement in Washington that, if the present Congress did not grant a tariff on oil, I would leave the Republicans and vote with the Democrats in organizing the House," McGugin said. "This is a misinterpretation of my statement.

"I presented a resolution to the governor's oil conference calling upon Republican members of Congress from the oil-producing States to support an organization of the House of the next Congress, particularly a Speaker and a ways and means committee, which would give an immediate and fair hearing on an oil tariff.

"The resolution was accepted and I am personally and unqualifiedly committed to such a program. This obviously meant that Republican members should stand for a new Republican organization which will grant this consideration for the American oil industry."

(Associated Press.)

Representative Kading (Republican), Wisconsin, in a statement yesterday said he favored more liberal rules in the House, but that it was too early to say who he would support for Speaker in the next Congress.

"I believe that when the country is vitally interested in such great issues as the soldiers' bonus settlement and the prohibition question, the membership of the House should be given an opportunity to vote on such questions.

"Under existing rules of the House, this is impossible unless a small number of leaders and the rules committee consent. I favor more liberal rules in the conduct of the business of the House."

Vast Construction Program Looming

$3,000,000,000 Is to Be Spent on Public, Semi-public Projects Soon.

(Associated Press.)

The President's emergency committee for employment has been informed that more than $3,000,000,000 worth of public and semipublic construction work is planned to start in the next few months.

Announcing the results of a canvass of the country yesterday, Chairman Wood said $1,221,200,000 worth of work was awaiting only final drafting details and contract letting before getting under way.

In addition to this immense total, $1,831,800,000 worth of work is in preliminary stages of inauguration.

Hospitals, churches and local, State and Federal construction programs, including a portion of highway developments, were incorporated under the figure.

Franklin T. Miller, who prepared the schedules, explained that the data on which it was based was furnished by members of the architectural and engineering professions in cities of the country.

It was added the individual jobs reported would be followed up "with a view to accelerating actual construction wherever possible."

50 Reported Drowned In Wreck of Russ Ship

London, Jan. 22 (A.P.).—Fifty persons apparently were drowned through the wreck of a Russian steamer in a storm today, although reports differed both as to the name of the boat and the place of the disaster.

One advice said that the steamer was named the Javaria and sank in the Aegean Sea, while another gave the name as Avasila and said the disaster happened in the Black Sea. Neither name appears in Lloyds register of shipping.

Robinson, of Arkansas, designed to promote medical aid in the drought area. A $3,000,000 fund, to provide medicine and medical care, which would be administered by the Public Health Service, is proposed in the measure.

The Red Cross to date has raised $1,127,000 in its $10,000,000 campaign, it reported today. Together with $5,000,000 already in the society's emergency fund, a total of more than $6,000,000 was thus available for immediate use.

Referring to a proposal that 20,000,000 bushels of wheat held up by subsidiaries of the Farm Board be purchased for the Red Cross, the Millers National Federation today wired their willingness to grind into flour, at a nominal cost, wheat intended for relief purposes.

Hawks Lands Rogers In Arkansas for Talk

Little Rock, Ark., Jan. 22 (A.P.).—Capt. Frank Hawks, flying Will Rogers from Washington, arrived at the Little Rock Airport at 4:53 p. m. today. Rogers spoke tonight over the radio in the interest of Arkansas drought and unemployment relief.

Capt. Hawks, holder of the transcontinental speed record, flew a biplane loaned for Roger's tour of the Southwest by David S. Ingalls, Assistant Aeronautics Secretary for the Navy. From here the two plan to fly to Austin, Tex., and on February 15, expect to end their tour at New

BANDITS WOUND ONE IN PULLMAN HOLDUP

LOOT VALUED AT $2,640

Bellefontaine, Ohio, Jan. 22 (A.P.).—Every community in this section was on watch tonight for trace of six daring train bandits who shot one passenger and robbed five others on a Big Four Pullman car as the train sped between Carey, Ohio, and here early today.

The robbers, masked and heavily armed, roused the passengers from their berths at about 3 a. m. and made away with valuables worth $2,640.

They shot Edwin K. Nelson, jr., of Tampa, Fla., to silence him when he awakened from his sleep screaming. As the train pulled into Bellefontaine they dropped off the coach, leaving three women and two men passengers herded into a drawing room and the wounded man near death in his berth.

Victim Near Death.

Nelson was taken to a hospital here, and Big Four surgeons said he had little chance to recover. The bullet pierced his chest.

The bandits confined their operations to a single Pullman. The porter, two flagmen and a brakeman were held up by the bandits.

Two other passengers on the Pullman, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Young, of Toronto, Ontario, slept soundly through it all, and the bandits overlooked them when they searched the coach.

The robbery victims were Mrs. L. G. Dearing, of Chattanooga, Tenn.; Mrs. E. G. Zacharias, of Atlanta, Ga.; Mr. and Mrs. Aleck McPherson, of Cedar Springs, Ontario, and E. W. Warner, of Cincinnati.

Valuables Taken.

Mrs. Dearing lost a diamond ring valued at $2,000. A wrist watch valued at $500 and $60 was taken from Mrs. Zacharias. The McPhersons were robbed of $60 in cash and $20 was taken from Warner. The bandits made no effort to search Nelson.

The robbers partly lost their nerve after Nelson was shot. The other passengers said the wounded man was just coming out of nightmare when he was awakened, and ignored the command for silence. Nelson apparently was the first passenger approached, for the others were startled by the noise.

Two of the men tried to minister to Nelson when the wound indicated that he might bleed to death, but they were unable to help him and turned their attention again to the passengers.

Governors Called On Unemployment

Seven Will Meet Today in Albany on Invitation of Roosevelt.

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 22 (A.P.).—The governors of seven States will meet here for a three-day conference beginning tomorrow to find out why unemployment occurs and to consider methods of combating it through Government responsibility for relief and prevention.

The conference, called by Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York, will consider the problem of unemployment from the standpoint of a general problem and not a current emergency needing immediate relief.

Invited to the conference are the following governors: Joseph B. Ely, Massachusetts; Norman S. Case, Rhode Island; Wilbur S. Cross, Connecticut; Morgan F. Larson, New Jersey; Clifford Pinchot, Pennsylvania; George White, Ohio. Several of them will be accompanied by their wives and all will be guests at the executive mansion until they leave sometime Sunday.

The receivership was asked by counsel for T. A. D. Jones, former Yale coach and now a local coal dealer, as a creditor. Allegations in his bill were admitted by the company.

New York, Jan. 22 (A.P.).—All charges that former Magistrate George F. Ewald bought his seat on the municipal bench were dismissed today. Involved in the charges were Ewald, his wife, Bertha; Martin J. Healy and Thomas T. Tommaney, Tammany leader, and Dr. Francis M. Schirp, a member of the German-American Steuben Society, which recommended Ewald's appointment.

It was charged the Ewalds paid Dr. Schirp $2,000 for the society's recommendation and Mrs. Ewald gave Healy, a Tammany district leader, $10,000 through his lieutenant, Tommaney. Mrs. Ewald and Healy said she lent him the money to build a home.

Supreme Court Justice Philip J. McCook dismissed the charges on recommendation of the State as well as the defense. Last week a jury disagreed in the trial of the Ewalds, and two juries had failed to agree in trials of Healy and Tommaney.

MEMBER OF HOUSE SUED FOR DIVORCE

CITES OTHER RELATIVES

Representative Charles J. Thompson, of the Fifth District of Ohio, was sued yesterday for limited divorce and maintenance by his wife, Mrs. Katherine Howe Thompson, the action being filed in District Supreme Court. Mrs. Thompson gave her address as Tilden Garden Apartments.

Mrs. Thompson stated in her action that she was married to the representative here on January 6, 1925, by the Rev. J. Shera Montgomery, chaplain of the House of Representatives. Mr. Thompson has been a representative for fourteen years, but was defeated in the November elections.

The wife charges that her husband, "aided and abetted by various members of his immediate family, carried on a systematic course of cruel, abusive and inhuman treatment toward her." She alleges she has become mentally and physically ill as a result and that she was forced, by these reasons, to leave her husband December 15 last.

The wife charges further that her husband's son by a former marriage, Samuel Craig Thompson, and an aunt, Mrs. Harriett C. Blum, "have carried on a systematic course of cruel conduct" toward her, and claims that both have repeatedly stated that she married the representative for "his money and social position."

Mrs. Thompson also charges her stepson with inserting advertisements in a local paper stating the representative would no longer be responsible for debts contracted by persons other than himself.

Mrs. Thompson was a former secretary of the representative. She states she is 62 years old, has no private income and is dependent on friends. Attorneys Martin F. O'Donoghue and Reeves R. Hilton are appearing for the wife.

Citizens Planning To Purchase Site

Rockville Pike Residents Subscribe $2,500 to Buy Triangle.

Subscription of approximately $2,500 by residents of the Rockville pike toward the purchase of the triangle at the intersection of Rockville pike and Old Georgetown road for a park was reported by Karl W. Corby, to County Commissioner Lacy Shaw yesterday. The owner of the property, William A. Ostmann, has asked that the property be rezoned commercial so that he can sell it to a gasoline company for use as a service station.

Residents of the pike appeared en masse before the county commissioners two weeks ago when they sat as a board of zoning appeals to discuss the appeal of Mr. Ostmann from the adverse decision of the Maryland National Capital Park and Planning Commission. At that time, Mr. Corby suggested that the residents club together and donate the funds to purchase the property for a park.

It is understood that the gasoline company has offered $8,500 for the site and the residents and the county commissioners hardly would be willing to pay this amount. It is possible that the commissioners will ask condemnation of the land by the park and planning commission as a solution. Attorneys for Mr. Ostmann pointed out at the hearing that failure to grant the rezoning would work a great injustice on their client.

Barber Bill Finds City Board Neutral

Commissioners Report No Reason For or Against Sunday Closing.

The District Commissioners took a neutral position yesterday on the bill to provide for the closing of barber shops on Sunday in Washington in answer to a request for examination and report from the House District committee.

"The Commissioners know of no objection to the passage of the bill, nor do they know of any demand for the enactment of the proposed legislation," the letter to Chairman Frederick N. Zihlman stated. "The Police Department reports that from observation it has not been disclosed that many barber shops remain open on Sunday and that in those which do remain open no disorders of any kind have been reported as the result of such opening."

The measure is approved by the Washington labor unions, as it is a national policy of the American Federation of Labor to close all businesses one day in seven whenever possible.

Car and Liquor Seized As Machine Is Wrecked

Almost 100 gallons of corn liquor fell into the hands of Sergt. C. E. Perry, of the Twelfth Precinct, last night when an automobile he was pursuing ran down an embankment at Eighteenth street and Rhode Island avenue northeast.

The Negro driver was catapulted from the machine and, with the impetus thus received, escaped. The car was confiscated and 96 gallons of liquor were placed in storage. The police had pursued the liquor car for several blocks.

WOMAN, U. S. AGENT, ACCUSED IN SWINDLE

blame for his loss, Mrs. Blacklidge answered:

"That's a lie, and he knows it is."

She asserted that Mr. Litsinger lent her $50,000 for 24 hours on the promise of $10,000 of her anticipated winnings in the faro game.

"He knew it was for the purpose of collecting the faro debt," Mrs. Blacklidge explained. "His nephew sat in the same room with me while I played, and Mr. Litsinger in the adjoining room."

Their divergent stories tallied in these particulars: That Mrs. Blacklidge, Mr. Litsinger and the latter's nephew, Fred, a Chicago motor company official, spent Wednesday night in Springfield; that they had brought from Chicago fifty $1,000 bills, the property of the elder Litsinger, which he lent her; that Mrs. Blacklidge and Fred Litsinger entered a hotel room with three men, and that the money vanished with the trio. Fred Litsinger said the men seized him and took the money.

Woman Tells Her Version.

Mrs. Blacklidge, almost broken by the unhappy turn of the faro plot, told her story to newspapermen. Nine months ago she had lost her husband and son, victims of pneumonia. Last week, she said, friends of her husband invited her to a faro game. Her luck was with her. Betting a thousand, three thousand on the turn of a card she ran up some $207,000 winnings in two hours. She wanted to collect and quit, but the players refused to settle until she put up in cash the $50,000 check she had exhibited in token of good faith. She returned to Chicago and presented her plea to Mr. Litsinger, a fellow worker of the Deneen Republican faction.

The two Litsingers went back with her, and she said she lost the $207,000 and the added $50,000 in twenty minutes' play.

"I also lost a little cash of my own," she said. "I was cleaned."

At this point, the trio made their getaway with the fortune and Mr. Litsinger called the police. They took Mrs. Blacklidge to the station, but let her go on her own recognizance.

Litsinger's Story Differs.

Mr. Litsinger, returning to Chicago, told an entirely different version of the loan.

Mrs. Blacklidge told him, he stated, that she needed $50,000 cash to make good a check of like amount before she could realize her $90,000 share due from a business venture of her late husband. There was no mention of faro, Mr. Litsinger asserted.

"I shall present the facts to the State's attorney and the courts," he said.

(Associated Press).

Internal revenue officals said yesterday the affairs of Mrs. Myrtle Blacklidge, collector of internal revenue for northern Illinois, would be investigated immediately. Meanwhile she will continue her duties.

ANNA PAVLOWA DEAD AFTER SHORT ILLNESS

prima ballerina of the Mariinski Theater, to which the school was attached.

Preceded by a glamorous reputation—she had gone from the Mariinski Theater to the Imperial Opera House in St. Petersburg—Pavlowa came out of Russia in 1910. Early that year she made a triumphant London debut, in "Le Cygne," "Les Papillons" and "Valse Caprice."

She then went to Paris, where she appeared with Diaghileff's Russian ballet in "Les Sylphides," "Paavilion D'Armide," and "La Nuit Egyptienne." Her New York debut was made that same year in "Coppelia." Everywhere she was received with highest praise.

In the next 15 years she toured the United States several times, Australia twice, South America and Africa.

Of Pavlowa's partners Michael Mordkin was most famous. Finally in 1912, after frequent altercations on the stage and after it had long been rumored that professional jealousy made it impossible for them to get along together, they separated.

Little was known of Pavlowa's private life. In 1924 when she announced her marriage to her accompanist, Victor d'Andre, she said:

"The world likes to think of an artist as an illusion, a being of imagination and romance. That is why I keep my private life to myself."

FIRE DAMAGES HOME OF REPRESENTATIVE

William B. Bankhead, Wife Narrowly Escape From Burning House.

FIREMEN RESCUE TWO

Fire which damaged the home of Representative William B. Bankhead, of Alabama, 1617 Nineteenth street northwest, early yesterday morning caused the thrilling rescue of the representative's wife and the narrow escape of Mr. Bankhead himself. Mrs. Isabella Purvis, another occupant of the house, and Mrs. Bankhead were carried down ladders to safety by firemen.

Representative Bankhead followed them down the ladder without assistance, clad only in his pajamas and dressing gown. Afterward he minimized the danger, but praised work of District firemen, one of whom, Private R. M. Drummond, was slightly burned about the chest in effecting the rescue of the women, after he and Privates C. J. Pfiel and C. A. Beeck had run a ladder up to an iron balcony.

The blaze started in the adjoining house, occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Louis H. Meares, at 1616 Nineteenth street. Mr. and Mrs. Meares, an elderly couple, ran to the street in their night clothes to escape the flames. Mr. Meares has been ill for some time.

Representative Bankhead is the father of Tallulah Bankhead, actress, who is now on her way to Hollywood to take part in talking pictures. He is also the father of Eugenia Bankhead, whose marital ventures have furnished considerable news in the past.

Man Seeks Wife By Plea in Court

Arrington Says Mrs. Brent Is Keeping Her Daughter From Him.

Hearing on a petition for habeas corpus through which Milton T. Arrington, of Park road northwest, near Sixteenth street, seeks to regain possession of his wife, was continued yesterday by Justice Wendell P. Stafford until January 30.

The petition is directed against Mrs. Corinne Brent, mother of the wife, represented in court by Attorney Godfrey L. Munter, who declared the daughter of his client had left her husband of her own free will and did not desire to return to him.

Arrington complained that his mother-in-law and others took his wife from their home Monday against her will. Attorney Munter stated he would file an answer to the petition and intimated the answer would assert that the marriage was illegal since the wife is not yet 18 years old and had not obtained her mother's consent when she went through a marital ceremony at Ellicott City, Md., last November.

The occasion was the annual reunion dinner of the special grand jury impaneled in September of 1922, which sat continuously for thirteen months investigating alleged local governmental graft.

The wine was presented to the jurors at their first reunion, to be opened if and when prohibition ends.

Shreveport Police Chief Facing Quiz

Gambling Raid Resulted in Death of Two Officers and Proprietor.

New Orleans, La., Jan. 22 (A.P.).—Gov. Huey P. Long today threatened a State investigation into the police raid in Shreveport last Saturday night which resulted in the deaths of two officers sent into a Negro gambling house in blackface disguise. The Negro proprietor of the place was fatally wounded in the raid, dying 24 hours later, as a mob swarmed about the hospital where officers guarded him.

Gov. Long charged that the Shreveport police chief, D. D. Bazer, "was guilty of murder," in the deaths of his two subordinates, and said the Louisiana law prohibiting public disguise, passed in 1924 as an anti-Ku Klux Klan measure, had been violated.

Announcement of the intended investigation drew a reply from Chief Bazer in which he called Gov. Long a "liar" and said "the governor would not make such a statement to my face." Chief Bazer had been commended by the Mayor of Shreveport for his conduct in the raid.

Madrid Students On Protest Strike

Berenguer Government Is Attacked and Republic Demanded.

Madrid, Jan. 22 (A.P.).—Students at the University of Madrid declared a strike today as a protest against the Berenguer government, boycotted their classes and gathered to hear speakers who demanded establishment of a republic in Spain.

The monarchy was denounced at meetings in the university buildings and many professors joined 3,000 student members of the University Scholars Federation in the strike. One of them asserting that since Spain had no constitution there was no reason for him to lecture his classes on political law.

The principal cause for today's strike was said to be a demand by the students that 50 of their colleagues and half a dozen professors be released from prison, where they were placed recently when the government rounded up several thousand alleged Republican suspects.

WAR OPPONENTS ASK WORLD COURT ENTRY

Meeting Urges Extra Session of Congress to Consider U. S. Membership.

MRS. CATT REELECTED

The sixth annual conference on the Cause and Cure of War last night ended its sessions here with the re-election of Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt as chairman, and an appeal for Congress to meet in extra session for consideration of the World Court protocol. This latter action came with the adoption of a resolution offered after women who had been watching on Capitol Hill reported little likelihood of World Court legislation with the present Congress.

"Some of the worst opponents of the World Court are going out on March 4," said Mrs. Raymond Morgan, of Washington. "In the present session, 13 are hopelessly opposed, 21 are saying they are opposed to it, 44 senators are definitely pledged for it, and the rest are in the twilight zone."

Urges Appeal to Mothers.

An appeal to the mothers of America was urged at last night's session of the conference by Mrs. Ben Hooper, recording secretary, in summing up the four days' work. "If the handful of gentlemen on Capitol Hill refuse to let us have up-to-date machinery to settle our international problems," she said, "we can appeal to the people of the country. We can make a house-to-house canvass and ask all women to inquire how candidates for election stand on the World Court. The mothers of America can retire every member of the Senate who acts on prejudice rather than on the opinions of the women of the country."

In her address closing the conference, Mrs. Catt declared that the aftermath of war is more disastrous than war itself. "I would rather see 100,000 young men lying dead as a result of battle than see the loss of morality which has followed every war.

Economic, Moral Bankruptcy.

"The greatest cost of war is not in human life but in economic and moral bankruptcy. There went out of the world following the last war something which I can describe only as moral fiber. Men drank more, women smoked more, freedom in relations of sex increased, our literature, our movies, and our theaters became lax."

Other resolutions adopted by the conference included one recommending study by member organizations of agenda prepared for the 1932 disarmament conference, another endorsing measures abolishing or making elective courses of military training in land grant colleges and another urging arbitration of international disputes. A resolution congratulating the British government and Indian representatives on the result of the recent Indian conference in London was killed after Mrs. E. C. Carter, of New York, had declared "we don't know enough about the attitude of minds in Great Britain and India."

The conference decided to make "The Economic Causes of War" the subject of its next conference.

Mrs. A. Chambers Oliphant Elected President for Coming Year.

Mrs. A. Chambers Oliphant was chosen president of the Young Women's Christian Association in this city for the coming year, at the first meeting of the newly-elected board of directors which met yesterday at the Y. Larner, is well known in Washington and has for a number of years, even prior to her marriage, been associated with the Y. W. C. A. here as a board member from time to time.

Mrs. Edwin B. Parker was selected as first vice president; Mrs. Luke I. Wilson, second vice president; Mrs. William Adams Slade, who as Miss Gertrude McArthur, was a former general secretary of the Y. W. C. A., was chosen to be recording secretary, and Mrs. Robert Lansing as corresponding secretary.

Miss Margaret R. Fox was reelected treasurer of the association, according to the proposed amendment to the constitution of the organization, which allows the treasurer to hold office for more than two consecutive terms—which is forbidden to all other officers of the Y. W. C. A.

without advices on the matter and would have nothing to say.

However, it is strongly believed that this Government's reaction will be adverse. The reason lies in unwillingness to accept the leading part and the leading responsibility where other countries are far more concerned. Naval matters having been settled at London, the new conference is expected to deal almost entirely with land armaments, of which the United States has comparatively little and that little remote from the scene of real controversy. Under such circumstances this Government would regard presidency of the conference as an inflated role.

WHITE URGES HIGHER PAY FOR OCEAN MAIL

Merchant Marine Gathering Told Increase in Rates Will Aid Building.

FOREIGN "INVASIONS" HIT

Amendment of the merchant marine act of 1928 so as to provide increased rates under ocean mail contracts to American firms operating high speed ships was urged last night by Representative Wallace H. White, jr., chairman of the House merchant marine and fisheries committee, speaking before the final session of the fourth national conference on the merchant marine. Mr. White, who is coauthor of the merchant marine act, declared that Government aid is needed to induce construction of speedy American passenger liners.

He also declared that Congress should enlarge the definition of a fighting ship so as to include foreign vessels which are projected into nearby passenger trade during the tourist months to "skim off the cream." These vessels, Mr. White said, "escape by their departure from that trade the burdens of the lean months of the year-round operation in that trade."

Adoption of the pending proposal to place the Erie Canal under Federal control was urged by Representative S. Wallace Dempsey, of New York, chairman of the House rivers and harbors committee. His views, incorporated in a resolution, were adopted by the conference.

Another resolution adopted by the conference opposed recent efforts to place domestic shipping under the jurisdiction of the Interstate Commerce Commission. The same resolution opposed a proposal now pending in the House for an inquiry by the commission into Government regulation of coastwise traffic.

Means of increasing patronage of American vessels were suggested by J. L. Banham, president of the New York Board of Trade and vice president of the Otis Elevator Co. The speaker proposed that steamship companies give attention to cruises in nearby waters, such as the Caribbean, and that they make greater use of publicity and advertising than in the past.

The committee appointed last year to study the question of training officers for the United States Merchant Marine expressed opposition in its report to the conference to training such officers at the Naval Academy or the Coast Guard Academy. A national system for this training was recommended.

Antisaloon Group Seeks New Home

Capitol Plaza Improvement to Cause Razing of Old Quarters.

Forced by the Capitol Plaza improvement program to abandon in the near future their headquarters in the Bliss Building, the Antisaloon League is looking around for a new home in "shooting range" of the Capitol.

The Bliss structure, at B street and Arthur place northwest, as well as the Driscoll Hotel nearby, is doomed to be razed next summer.

The Antisaloon organization will not move far, however. It plans to make its headquarters in the new building which the Bliss interests expect to erect between First, Second, B and C streets northwest, fronting on the proposed new boulevard linking the Union Station with Pennsylvania avenue and skirting the Capitol grounds.

Faculty at Howard U. Has Robeson as Guest

Dr. Mordecai W. Johnson, president of Howard University, and the university faculty, entertained at luncheon yesterday for Paul Robeson, the Negro singer and actor, who recently played the Moor in Shakespeare's "Othello," for eight months at the Savoy in London.

Robeson said that while he had no hesitancy in playing "Othello" in Europe, he would not venture the role in America except upon insistent demand. After completing 40 concert engagements in American cities, he will return to Europe in Shakespearean presentations, being booked for the Royal Theater at Stockholm, the National Theater at Prague, and other theaters in Germany. The singer was presented to the student body at a special assembly in Rankin Chapel.

REHEARING IS ASKED IN KINGSLAND CASE

U. S. Representatives File Petition Protesting Victory of Germans.

MANY MILLIONS AT STAKE

(Associated Press.)

American representatives before the German-American Mixed Claims Commission petitioned the commission last night for a rehearing in the famous Kingsland case, decided recently in favor of Germany.

The commission agreed unanimously in its decision that there was no evidence to show that the fire at the Kingsland, N. J., plant of the Canadian Car & Foundry Co. on January 11, 1917, had been caused by German agents.

The decision was rendered simultaneously with that in the famous Black Tom Terminal case, involving charges against German agents in connection with the fire during the World War at the New York Harbor Terminal of the Lehigh Valley Railroad. Claims in the two cases aggregated some $40,000,000. The American agent, Robert W. Bonyge, has already presented a brief asking reconsideration of the Black Tom case.

The announcement of the new request in the Kingsland case was made by H. H. Martin, of Atchison, Kans., counsel for the American agent. It was followed immediately by a statement authorized by Dr. Karl von Lewinski, German agent, before sailing for Germany on the Bremen Wednesday night in which he characterized the American petition as "merely a reargument of the case."

Gates to District Will Be Improved

Garden Clubs of Maryland to Expend $5,000 on Embellishment.

Federated Garden Clubs of Maryland, holding their annual meeting yesterday in Baltimore, agreed to start on a planting project which will embellish five entrances to Washington along the State line. These are Bladensburg, Frederick, the Defense highway, Hyattsville and Mariboro.

The Garden Club of America will furnish granite monoliths and the State organization will supply evergreens and other plants at a cost of $5,000. Work is expected to be completed in time for the George Washington bi-centennial celebration in 1932.

Mrs. Duncan K. Brent, of Ruxton, was elected president of the federation at the meeting which was held in Levering Hall at Johns Hopkins University. Others elected to office include: Mrs. W. Bladen Lownges, first vice president; Mrs. Heyward E. Boyce, second vice president; Mrs. Walter Hopkins, third vice president; Mrs. Charles Lee Packard, fourth vice president; Mrs. Harry Slack, recording secretary; Miss Jane Forbes, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. Francis Cadwalader, treasurer. More than 300 delegates attended the session, representing 23 garden clubs.

LAME DUCK RELIEF.

Senator Fess, a member of the George Washington Bicentennial Commission, is given credit for originating a plan to divert $10,000 annually from the commission's funds into the pocket of a lame duck, Mr. Cramton, of Michigan, whose term as a member of the House will expire on March 4. According to the plan that is cautiously thrown out as a feeler of public opinion, Mr. Cramton is to be appointed an additional director of the bicentennial activities, although a director has already been appointed in the person of Representative Sol Bloom, who performs the duties without cost to the commission.

Two objections to this plan are immediately apparent. First, the money appropriated for the bicentennial celebration could not possibly have been intended by Congress to be devoted to the relief of unemployed lame duck congressmen. The amount appropriated is small, while the output of lame ducks is practically normal. Assuming that Congress would adopt a strictly nonpartisan and impartial plan if it were intending to set up a lame duck relief fund, it seems that the commission would be acting improperly if it should favor one lame duck as against another. Why discriminate in favor of Mr. Cramton, a member of the House, and leave out in the cold Cole Blease, Tom Heflin, Joe Grundy, Henry Allen, Charlie Deneen, Jack Robsion and other deserving lame ducks of the Senate? Or why discriminate in favor of men, and leave out Ruth McCormick?

Another objection to this plan is that division of executive authority insures confusion and failure. Two men can not steer an automobile safely, much less a bicentennial celebration. If the commission intends to transform the directorship from an executive into a deliberative body, it should include all lame ducks, in order to reap the benefit of a store of wisdom that will otherwise go to waste. Added appropriations would be necessary, of course, but this is a mere routine detail under the new rule of "millions for politics, but not one cent for tribute to George Washington."

If the commission should hold that since Mr. Bloom is a Democrat a Republican should be appointed codirector, for the sake of insuring a strictly bipartisan celebration in honor of George Washington, then we insist that the claims of Joe Grundy shall not be ignored. He is a Republican; he comes from a backward State; he has been more roundly abused than Mr. Cramton has ever been; he lost by a larger margin; he would represent the right of the Senate to a coequal share in the distribution of unemployment relief; and he was a wheelhorse for the G. O. P. when Louey Cramton was a babe in arms.

OVERCROWDED SCHOOLS.

In formulating a new policy with respect to the admission of nonresidents as pupils in the public schools the Board of Education acts not in hostility to residents of nearby areas, but in simple justice to Washingtonians. The schools are severely overcrowded. The building program under way and proposed is woefully inadequate. Overcrowding of the schools has become chronic and the chances are it will continue so to be. For this reason the board has no choice but to tighten up on the admission requirements.

The board is opposed to the admission to local schools of nonresident children whose parents do not pay taxes in the District. It proposes to initiate a policy under which nonresident children would be admitted to the local schools only upon the payment of a tuition fee and provided no overcrowding would result. Under the present law the children of Army officers and of parents who work in the District are exempted from the payment of tuition, and certain other privileges are accorded nonresidents, as a result of which practically none of them pay tuition. It is only just that parents who make no contribution to the cost of operating the schools should be required to pay a moderate fee.

More important than the collection of fees for nonresident children, however, is the enforcement of regulations whereby the local schools may be kept closed to nonresidents except when they can be accommodated without overcrowding. So serious is the problem of congestion in many of the schools that young people find their educational period cut in half. This in some cases amounts to a denial of the opportunity to obtain an education. It is a shameful state of affairs in the Capital of the United States.

MACDONALD'S DESPERATE SITUATION.

The defeat of Ramsay MacDonald's government on a minor amendment to the education bill is significant in that it presages general elections in England. Despite the sizable adverse vote—the opposition showed a majority of 33—Mr. MacDonald refused to resign on the ground that "no question of principle" was involved. But bills are scheduled for early discussion in Parliament in which questions of principle are involved. It is only a matter of time until the same opposition that has just defeated the MacDonald government will be rallied against a question of large importance, whereupon Mr. MacDonald will be unable to evade the fate that under the British system awaits the government that ceases to enjoy the confidence of Parliament.

The Labor party holds power by virtue of a working agreement under which the Liberal party cast its lot with Labor. It is this coalition that has enabled Mr. MacDonald to hold the reins of government. Whenever Mr. Lloyd George decides to put the Labor party out of power he can do so. There is no natural affinity between the Labor and Liberal parties.

It is not unlikely that Lloyd George has permitted the Labor government to stand because he knows that any government in these parlous times will have hard sledding, that it will earn the enmity of a great many people who look to it to perform the miracle of abolishing distress and depression, and that consequently its ultimate defeat will be the more severe. Mr. MacDonald has said on several occasions that he is ready to go before the people in an election, but it may be doubted that he is sincere in the statement.

The MacDonald government has two accomplishments upon which it can base an appeal for support. It concluded the London naval treaty. It evolved a scheme for the liberalization of the government of India which may or may not prove acceptable. Against these accomplishments, however, are several glaring failures. The imperial economic conference broke down. Nothing has been done to stimulate business. Unemployment has increased. In the affairs that mean most to the man in the street Mr. MacDonald has failed. Probably no party could have done any better. The conditions that confront Great Britain are so appalling that no political party seems to be willing to supplant Mr. MacDonald.

TARIFF ON TOMATOES.

It is not generally realized that the tomato crop, valued at some $50,000,000 a year, ranks third in importance among American vegetable crops. The average American, according to the Department of Agriculture, eats about eighteen pounds of tomatoes out of cans and bottles every year. Today there are set out in tomatoes between 250,000 and 300,000 acres, from which are gathered annually from 1,000,000 to 1,250,000 tons.

In behalf of the tomato growers an organized appeal is now being made to the Tariff Commission to maintain at the level specified in the Smoot-Hawley bill the tariff on tomatoes. A few weeks ago there appeared before the commission representatives of Italian tomato growers and importers, to urge that the maximum reductions possible under the law be applied to the duties on canned tomatoes and tomato paste. The domestic growers assert, however, that to lower the duties at this time would deal a fatal blow to the domestic industry. Admitting that there has been a decided falling off in imports of canned tomatoes and tomato paste since the new duties became effective, the growers suggest that this came about because of excessive imports immediately prior to enactment of the new tariff.

The situation with respect to tomatoes gives rise to an excellent opportunity to test the effectiveness of the tariff as a medium of farm relief. Here is a commodity in great demand that ordinarily would suffer from foreign competition, that has been granted the beneficent protection of comparatively high duties. The tariff wall that has been erected should not be lowered until following the harvest of at least one and preferably several normal crops. It would then be apparent whether the producers of other agricultural commodities if they were to stop producing surpluses could look to the protective tariff for a measure of genuine farm relief.

PRESERVING WILD LIFE.

It was hardly necessary for the Senate special committee on wild life resources, in order to promote game preservation, to compare the number of golfers and tennis players with the vast multitude who love to fish, hunt and roam in the woods. The American people love the great open spaces, the canyons, lakes, forests and streams. Wild life constitutes one of the principal charms of the wilderness, whether one is a hunter, a fisher or just a lover of nature.

The committee has found "convincing evidence of a decrease in wild life, due in part to drainage, deforestation, fire, disease, water pollution and the extended occupation of land by agriculture and industry." Hundreds of species have been brought to the point of extinction because they were given no protection in the days when game was plentiful.

Since the committee makes no radical recommendation, it may be assumed that it considers the present conservation movement on the right track. The States have abolished sale of game. Hunting and fishing are for the most part strictly supervised. Wanton killing of birds and animals is frowned upon by society in general. Sporting organizations do a great deal to arouse public sentiment on the subject and to stimulate constructive action. Many of the States and the Federal Government have established fish hatcheries, game preserves and game farms.

The present unsatisfactory condition seems to arise from the inadequacy of the conservation program. It is estimated that all appropriations by State and Federal governments for protection and development of wild life do not exceed $13,000,000, while $90,000,000 is spent by individuals for hunting and fishing equipment and $650,000,000 on accessories for outdoor recreation. If this condition should continue the people will acquire wonderful equipment for hunting, fishing, hiking, &c., but the wild life of the country will be depleted.

ELECTRIC POWER RATES.

The Public Utilities Commission is determined to follow its own method of securing further reductions of the electric power rate in the District. Both the commission and corporation counsel agree that the existing rate is too high, but they differ in the method of bringing about a reduction. Mr. Bride suggests that the consent decree under which the rate is now fixed should be abrogated. The commission in seeking a modification of that decree has ignored his advice.

From a broad point of view it appears that the public interest will best be served by retention of the decree, with the changes suggested by the commission. To abolish the decree would be to start another controversy over power rates that might work to the disadvantage of both the public and the power company. Until every means to establish just and reasonable rates under the present arrangement has failed the commission would not be justified in opening up a controversy over valuation.

At present the decree allows the public to participate in the profits of the power company. Since the decree became effective the prices paid for electricity in the District have been reduced by more than one-half. In spite of this the company earns more than 10 per cent on its investment. Rates are fixed in such a way that the company shares with the public the benefits of greater efficiency and extension of its business. This incentive for improvement has brought results. It ought not to be removed.

A public utility is entitled to a fair return on its investment. Should the Public Utilities Commission fix an arbitrary rate which allowed the company no incentive to improve its methods and effect economies the public would, in the end, pay a higher rate than at present.

The commission suggests that the rate reductions be brought about by increasing the public share of excess earnings. The company would still be allowed to increase its profits through progressive business management. This seems to be an admirable solution of the problem.

SWEDEN'S LIQUOR PLAN

From the New York Herald Tribune.

References in the Wickersham prohibition report to the Swedish liquor control law have attracted public attention again to an outstanding social experiment of modern times.

In order to drink within the law in Sweden the drinker must qualify by making an affidavit setting forth his family and personal background, how much he earns, whether he has ever been arrested, whether he drinks temperately or otherwise, and other autobiographical matter.

Then the candidate for the drinking privilege is investigated. Sweden spends more than $1,000,000 a year investigating its drinkers. If the authorities determine that he may safely be allowed to drink they issue to him a passbook which enables him to purchase whisky, brannvin (the Swedish potato whisky) or other hard liquor. The temperate man, who can afford it, is entitled to four and one-fifth quarts of spirits a month. The man of low income can not have so much. The man of demonstrated intemperance is placed on a starvation diet of whisky or not allowed to have a whisky book at all.

The liquor companies are under government control, but are privately financed. The owners of stock in these companies, however, are limited to profits of 5 per cent. Profits in excess of that go to the government. The restriction of private profit is one of the keystones of this system which was worked out for Sweden by Dr. Ivan Bratt.

"Disinterested management" of the liquor business is essential, according to the theory of Dr. Bratt, who introduced the system into Sweden in 1914. When increased profits do not flow from increased sales, there is no incentive for high-pressure business methods to force the sales of liquor. The abolition of the proverbial big money of the liquor business is probably the most important and the soundest part of the Bratt system, according to many observers.

However, there is bootlegging in Sweden. Sweden's next-door neighbor is Finland. Finland has prohibition. Naturally, quantities of Finnish liquor swarm over the border into Sweden. Sweden has speakeasies and other liquor troubles. The drys complain that the liquor law doesn't work, and the wets hold that it is too drastic and harsh, but in the elections of the last decade the Swedish people have registered satisfaction with the system.

In the City of Stockholm, with its population of 474,000, there were in 1929 three killings, a record infinitely better than that of any American city of its size. Arrests for drunkenness in 1927 were 4.7 per 1,000 inhabitants. In the bone dry city of Helsingfors, Finland, the arrests for drunkenness in 1929 were reported to be approximately 100 for each 1,000 inhabitants.

Sweden has had a reputation for centuries of being a hard-drinking country. The extreme cold and the long nights have favored this. The absence of native vines and hops, which caused the drinking of potato spirits, had contributed to it. The liquor situation was so bad in 1855 that the country adopted what was known as "the Gothenburg system," which restricted the sale of liquor and aimed to curb private profit. This system worked imperfectly, but was an improvement. It contained the germs of the ideas which were developed by Dr. Bratt.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

THE CURE.

She smiled as he passed, and his shoulders went back
In spite of the year he'd been dressing in black;
In spite of the fifty-odd years, and the gloom
Of night after night in his one little room.
She was pretty and youthful, and seeing her smile
He thought "after all life may still be worth while!"

In spite of his sorrows his head went in air,
As smiling and pretty he noticed her there,
And he asked: "May I call?" And she answered: "You may!"
So in spite of the fact that his hair had turned gray
He chuckled a little and said to himself:
"I'm not old enough yet to be laid on the shelf."

Now the gossips remark there's a match under way,
And they mention the fact that his neckties are gay.
They have noticed his car at a young lady's door
And they say that his season of mourning is o'er.
And a wiseacre says: "There's no tonic so sure

By ROBERT QUILLEN

THE world envies a movie star because it sees her at ease on the screen with a background of romance or pictured during her hours of leisure in the luxury of a palatial home.

And when it reads that she has refused to play in a new production that does not fit her talents, it says in reproof: "Conceited little cat! Success has spoiled her."

It has spoiled her, indeed, but not in a way the world understands.

She works early and late. The glare and heat of the great lamps sap her vitality. "On location" she endures as much discomfort as a field hand. When one production is finished and she has a week or a month to "rest," she spends the time perfecting new dance routines, learning new lines, enduring the boredom of being fitted for new costumes.

She has money, but no time to spend it. The new bungalow afforded a thrill while it was in process of building, but now it is no more than a place to rest. She can live like a duchess, but when the novelty of it wears off she remembers that she isn't a real duchess and the pretense makes her feel cheap.

She has reached the point—an experience common to all artists worth their salt—where nothing seems worth while except good work. Money and fame seem a poor return for what she endures. There is no inducement to carry on unless she can feel that she is doing something worth while.

"Get your happiness out of your work," said Stevenson, "or you will never know what happiness is."

Physicians understand that. Whether answering midnight calls in dreadful weather without hope of money reward or steeling themselves for an emergency operation at the end of a busy day, they find in the consciousness of doing good the only reward sufficient to justify their labors. Money couldn't hire them to keep such a pace.

Men of large affairs and great wealth are called hypocrites when they talk of serving; but the truth is, the mere getting of money they do not need would prove unbearably tiresome if they could not envision themselves as builders of civilization.

Men will dig until they drop if they are trying to liberate a buried comrade, but they work in listless resentment when the boss gives them some useless task merely to keep them busy.

The most contented workman is the one whose wages include fodder for his self-respect.

Sectional Patriotism.

The Senate insurgents seem to be put out because the patient will not take their hint about raising the money in the East and spending it in the West.

Besmirching Appointees.

Philadelphia Public Ledger.

A long-familiar condition, the tempting of capable officials from Government employ by large financial offers from private business, has recently been intensified. The Government can never hope to compete on equal terms in this respect with commerce and industry. But it is now facing a worse condition; the difficulty of inducing men of outstanding talents to run the gantlet that has been set up by the Senate.

It has come to be the accepted procedure that any person named for such an office shall be haled before a Senate committee and subjected to a searching inquisition regarding not only his training and qualifications but his views on how that office should be administered, and frequently the questioning has extended even to his political opinions. He may expect also to be catechized concerning his private business and financial affairs.

Partisan politics with an eye to next year's presidential campaign has increased the Senate's ancient hostility toward the Executive. But that is no excuse for holding a club over the head of every man who is sufficiently distinguished to be selected by the President for high public office.

Foreign Naval Increases.

New York Herald Tribune.

A glance at the United States from a naval standpoint on this anniversary discloses that it is farthest from its quota in aircraft carriers, large gun cruisers and small gun cruisers. The proposed naval bill is wholly inadequate from the standpoint of achieving an American treaty navy within a significant period of time. But when we look abroad there appears little hesitation among the foreign powers to keep up their sea strength. The French and Italian increases are well known. Japan has approved a $186,000,000 building program, and the Labor government in Great Britain has assured its Conservative critics that it will undertake a replacement program to keep the British navy well up to the treaty level. Only in the United States is there an inexplicable unwillingness to undertake this important public construction. This dereliction will not only weaken the position of American delegates at the next conference but entails a manifestly inadequate naval establishment at a period when none can maintain that peace has been guaranteed.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Dr. Ryan Holds That Drought Emergency Calls for Relief From Public Treasury—Community Needs Should Be Met by Filling the Chest.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I regret to see from the announcement in this morning's Post that the campaign for the Community Chest is to be combined with that of the Red Cross for the special drought relief fund of $100,000. While I intend to increase substantially my contribution to the chest for this year, I shall designate the agencies to which I want my money to go in such a way that no part of it will find its way into this special Red Cross fund. If this liberty of designation is not permitted, as it has been in former years, I will contribute nothing.

My reasons for taking this position are three: 1. The combination of the two purposes in the coming campaign will hurt the chest and the local charities. 2. The resources of private charity in our various cities and towns will all be needed for the relief of local distress which has been vastly increased through unemployment. 3. The dire need which the people of several of our States are suffering, on account of the drought, constitutes a very special emergency which may properly be met out of the public Treasury. If it is impracticable for the States concerned to make this provision, there is ample precedent to put the burden upon the Federal Government. If we are one Nation, the needs of any part of our Commonwealth are properly the concern of the whole. The assertion that such a calamity as that resulting from the drought is a matter for private charity alone, not for public appropriations, is purely doctrinaire. I prefer the doctrine stated by Pope Pius XI in his recent Encyclical: "If private resources do not suffice, it is the duty of the public authorities to supply the insufficient forces of individual effort. * * * Hence, in making the laws disposing of public funds, they [the rulers of the state] must do their utmost to relieve the penury of the needy, considering such as one of the most important of their administrative duties." The principle laid down by the holy father in these sentences may, I believe, be fairly applied to conditions today in the United States, particularly to the heartrending conditions in the Southwest.

DR. JOHN A. RYAN.

Wickersham Report Would Be Perfect if It Had a Root Formula Attachment.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: As a political straw to show which way the Republican wind will blow in 1932, the drift of the Wickersham report is somewhat unreliable. Fortunately we don't need to bother about Democracy, because it already blows wet to moderate wet, with not much likelihood of decreased wetness in the platform.

But in so far as we must be guided by Wickersham prognostics, about the nearest to a definite forecast might be that the G. O. P. will blow wet or dry to dry, followed by promise of a spell of watchful enforcement.

Inasmuch as no one had an idea that the report would be generally satisfactory, there is no reason why any one should be disappointed, and as an interesting study in composite indefiniteness I find it really enjoyable.

Seriously speaking, there never has been and never again will be a report embodying such a happy combination of popular and diverse opinions as that of the so-called Wickersham Commission. In fact, it reads to me like all the able wet and dry editorials written since the beginning of dryness rolled into one. All it needs now is a Root formula to make it a classic.

Street Paving Torn Up by Underground Work That Should Be Done Before Paving—A Remedy.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Every spring many of the streets in Washington are torn up for underground work. Often the streets that are torn up have only recently been laid, and this means the resurfacing of the whole street which prior to excavating was in perfect condition. It is an annual occurrence here in Washington, and I think that it is a waste of the taxpayers' money. The underground work should be done before the surface work is completed, or else the District should hire an engineer who is a genius so that he can devise a plan whereby the asphalt on the surface can be laid in blocks, each block to be set into the ground smoothly so that when it is necessary to do excavating the blocks may be swung back and lowered into place again. In this manner the work of resurfacing a street can be eliminated and there will be no waste of District funds.

C. C. PARSONS.

Local Self-Government Cry Good Democratic Doctrine, but Democrats Cry for Federal Dole.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: At this writing Democratic politicians and Presidential candidates, mostly wet, are insisting that we get back to local self-government. Having always been a rank-and-file admirer of Thomas Jefferson and his works, that sort of talk never fails to have a luring sound to me.

Surely if there ever was a time when Constitutional leadership was needed it is right now when rank paternalism is advocated by Democratic as well as Republican legislators. So am in hopes that the present harping on States rights, is not just a before-election interlude to catch votes.

But past experience has made me wary, and I would have a great deal more faith in the local-self-government revival if its leaders were not clamoring for a Federal dole or trying to break down the Eighteenth Amendment.

MACDONALD FACES CRISIS WEDNESDAY

MAY RESIGN IF BEATEN

London, Jan. 22 A.P.).—The Labor government and the Conservative opposition joined battle in the House of Commons today over the second reading of the trades disputes act, a measure considered to be fraught with the gravest danger for Premier Ramsay MacDonald's cabinet.

Sir William Jowitt, the attorney general, moved the second reading and rejection of the bill was immediately asked by the Conservative leader, Stanley Baldwin.

The trades disputes act has aroused the bitterest political feelings of the present session and it is expected that if the government is defeated on a division, likely to come next Wednesday, it will resign.

The principal aim of the measure is cancellation of the Conservative act passed in 1927, the year following the great general strike, which laid down a definition of illegal strikes and contained numerous other clauses relative to the activities of trades unions.

Conservatives as a body, and some Liberals, opposed the bill on the ground that it would legalize such general strikes as that of 1926, which tied up British industry for a fortnight.

The House voted to sit all night tonight if necessary for debate on the second reading of the bill.

Work of Kiwanis Club Here Lauded

High Officer Says Capital Unit Is Model for Other Bodies.

The Washington Kiwanis Club was declared to be a model for other units of the organization, in an address by Robert A. Hutchison, lieutenant governor of the first division of the Capital Kiwanis District, at anniversary exercises for Kiwanis International yesterday at the Washington Hotel.

Mr. Hutchison reviewed activities of the club since it was organized in 1917. In 1918, according to the speaker, it raised $1,300,000 from the sale of Liberty Loan bonds, and in 1923 instituted orthopedic and welfare work, which brought it country-wide recognition. Presentation of Canadian flags by the Kiwanis organization of Canada was cited as furthering international good will.

An appeal for support of the Community Chest campaign was made by Radford Moses, former president of the club. Five members who celebrated birthdays during the week received cakes from Fred East, of the Continental Baking Co. They were C. Vaughn Darby, Karl F. Jorss, Joseph H. Gulliher, Dwight N. Burnham, Nathan Weill and Melvin H. Bich. The presentation was made by Fred A. Schutz, chairman of the birthday committee.

8 Generals Nearing Age of Retirement

U. S. Army Officers Reach Statutory Limit of 64 During 1931.

Five major generals and three brigadier generals will be retired for age during the present year, it was announced yesterday by the War Department. All of them will have reached the statutory age limit of 64 when retirement occurs.

Heading the list is Maj. Gen. Charles P. Summerall, until recently chief of staff, now at his home in Eustis, Fla., awaiting retirement March 31. Maj. Gen. Hanson E. Ely, in command of the second corps area, New York, and Maj. Gen. Fred W. Sladen, the latter in command of the third corps area, Baltimore, will retire November 30.

Maj. Gen. Merritte W. Ireland, the surgeon general since 1918, goes out May 31 and Maj. Gen. William Lassiter, now commanding the Hawaiian Department, on September 30.

The brigadier generals to retire are Henry C. Fisher, assistant to the surgeon general, May 31; Henry G. Learnard, commanding the Third Field Artillery Brigade, Fort Lewis, Washington, Aug. 31, and Carl R. Darnall, assistant to the surgeon general, commanding the Army Medical Center, Washington, December 31.

Memory of Lenin Revered by Russia

Soviet Capital Observes Anniversary of Death With Parades.

Moscow, Jan. 22 (A.P.).—Soviet Russia today enjoyed one of the five holidays of the year in commemoration of the seventh anniversary of the death of Nikolai Lenin.

While industry, shops and business generally halted to pay a tribute to the great exponent of communism, theaters, halls and clubs were filled with workers who listened to enthusiastic speeches extolling Lenin and the progress toward completion of the five-year industrialization plan.

Although the mercury was near zero there were numerous parades and other demonstrations and thousands visited the mausoleum in Red Square, where the body of the Communist leader lies embalmed.

Church Upholds Healing by Faith

Lower House of Canterbury Convocation Asks Group Be Named.

London, Jan. 2 (A.P.).—Faith healing won the approval of the lower house of the Canterbury convocation of the Church of England today when the house asked that a commission be named to evolve a temporary special service for "unction and the imposition of hands."

The service would be authorized by the Archbishop of Canterbury until a permanent form could be prepared and put into force.

The vote on the resolution approving the special service was 197 to 3. It followed upon a discussion on Christian Science and modern medicine. Both were praised as a means of healing, but Christian Science, as a religious faith, was criticized by the Rev. T. F. Monahan.

First Film Frightens Peasants; 12 Are Hurt

Georgeresti, Roumania, Jan. 22 (A.P.).—The introduction of motion pictures into this village tonight caused a stampede in which 12 persons were trampled, some of them being seriously injured.

A peasant audience, no member of which ever had seen a movie before, was assembled in the hall to view a cinematic thriller, and suddenly the scene flashed to a locomotive roaring straight down the track.

The engine appeared to rush out from the screen into the hall and the sight of this giant monster seemingly coming to run them down was too much for the spectators. They all made a wild rush for the door and in the ensuing frenzy all fittings of the building were wrecked.

HAVANA PUBLISHERS ATTACK SUSPENSION

Cuban Newspaper Owners Attack Law as Ancient and Obsolete.

ISSUE TAKEN TO COURT

Havana, Jan. 22 (A.P.).—A protest against a recent government decree suspending the publication of nine Cuban publications was issued jointly today by Rafael Govin, owner of El Mundo, and Count Del Rivero, owner of Diario de la Marina, the two largest Spanish language morning papers in Cuba.

Both these newspapers, together with seven others, were suspended January 9 for having "indirectly contributed to sedition in Cuba by giving prominent space to antigovernment activities."

The statement was as follows:

"Article 25 of the Cuban constitution prohibits press censorship of any kind and guarantees freedom of the press, freedom of thought and freedom of speech. The constitution expressly declares that this is one of the articles which can not be suspended under any circumstances, and the law recently passed by the Cuban Congress suspending the guarantees made no attempt to suspend this article.

Violation of Constitution.

"It is therefore perfectly clear that the censorship previously imposed was in violation of the constitution.

"In protest against this illegal censorship, twelve Havana newspapers and magazines ceased publication for fourteen days until the censorship was removed.

"When the government of Cuba again determined to put an end to the freedom of the press they were unable to again resort to the former illegal procedure and therefore by presidential decree closed the papers entirely.

"This drastic order can only result in the complete destruction of these properties, and the legality of the order can only be tested by resort to the courts, requiring a further long period of time.

"Leaving aside the legal situation, the law invoked to suppress the newspapers is a Spanish law enacted in 1870 in Spain and promulgated in Cuba in 1879.

Holds Law Is Invalid.

"We can not believe that a law enacted by the Spanish government 60 years ago nullifies the constitution of Cuba, which expressly nullifies all laws in conflict therewith.

"We believe that the government has taken advantage of this law of antiquated Spanish origin to avoid further publication of dispatches dealing with the conditions which at present prevail throughout the country.

"Even in Spain the attitude toward freedom of the press has become sufficiently enlightened to have repealed this law.

"We have made no effort to combat this measure, which we believe to be arbitrary and illegal, other than to take our proper appeal to the Supreme Court of Cuba."

Meeting Will See Electric Marvels

Bell Telephone Expert to Demonstrate Equipment Now in Use.

Sergius P. Grace, of the Bell Telephone Laboratories of New York, will describe and demonstrate before members of the National Geographic Society, at the Washington Auditorium this evening, the marvels of modern electric communication and recording that are in use today as well as some that may be brought into practical application in the future.

Much of the equipment which will be used by Mr. Grace in his demonstrations is that which is in use daily by millions of people who use the telephone, radio and electric phonograph.

Among the devices that will be demonstrated are the flaming arc, for the amplification of music; the "scrambling" of speech so that unauthorized listeners to radio telephone conversations can not understand them; delayed speech and many other marvels of the electrical world.

A rumor reached the Capital that Gov. Pennybacker of Pennsylvania was marked for death by the "Blackhand," and many threatening letters had been received by him.

Two instructors and more than a dozen Midshipmen at the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis were being tried by court-martial on charges of hazing.

Many residents of New York City were banding together to file a complaint against the noise of ships signaling with their whistles in the harbor.

DISEASES IN AFRICA.

IN the afternoon a talkie on hunting lions, elephants and rhinos in Tanganyika, British East Africa; in the evening, reading "Tanganyika Territory, annual medical and sanitary report for the year ending December 31, 1928," and a similar volume devoted to health work in 1929.

The afternoon's performance was no sort of preparation for the evening's reading. The reports show registration of births and deaths, vaccination against smallpox, laboratory work (both diagnostic and experimental), surgery, hospital facilities, clinics and health centers, health education, reporting the disease, preventive medicine and sanitation that is quite on a par with that done in some parts of North America, and better than that of some regions.

It is true that most of the reports related to the cities along the Pacific Coast. However, what is being done in a health way for the Negroes who live in the bush among the lions and elephants compares favorably with what is being done among Indians in America.

This has been going on for about a decade and at least one generation is required to materially change the health habits of any people, savage or civilized. When the lion hunter goes to the bush country of Tanganyika in 1930 he may require a health examination before he is allowed to visit the disease free natives.

These reports throw some light on the source of certain diseases now prevalent in America. It has been said that typhoid fever was carried from Africa to America by slaves. If the natives of East Africa were ever heavily infested with typhoid they are not now. They drink badly polluted water, and there is enough typhoid among Europeans and Asiatics residents there, but natives have little. It seems more than possible that most Negroes in this part of Africa have become immune to typhoid.

Another theory is that malaria originated in Africa and was spread to America by slaves. This could easily be true. The great disease menace of Africa is malaria. The malaria is likely to develop into haematuria just as it does, or did, in the worst malaria regions of America. But the Negroes suffer from it far less than the whites do. They are quite likely to become carriers rather than cases. All this lends support to the theory that malaria was a disease of prehistoric African Negroes and was brought by slaves to America.

There is no yellow fever in Tanganyika, but the mosquitoes that spread it around. The slave trade of Africa involved little of the African continent except the west coast and in that region there is an abundance of yellow fever. The authorities of Tanganyika greatly fear that yellow fever infection will be introduced into their country from West Africa. It is rather strange that this disease has never spread from the west coast when it is well established in the Nile valley and elsewhere in Africa.

Prof. Woolard Buys Old House At Georgetown

Dwelling Is Few Doors From That of Ruth Hanna McCormick.

Count that day lost which records not the adoption of Georgetown as a place of residence by one interesting family or another bent on owning an old house.

Now it is a small house at 1232 Thirtieth street, built in 1820, which Prof. Edgar Woolard, of the mathematics department at George Washington University, has purchased and will open within a fortnight. Prof. Woolard, who has been associated with the university about three years, was formerly a member of the staff of the United States Weather Bureau.

The tiny house has fine old woodwork and a quaint fireplace. It boasts a garden, adjoining that of the Robert Lincoln house. It is a few doors from the home of Representative Ruth Hanna McCormick. It has a "lineage" as old as many of the large colonial style homes in the neighborhood.

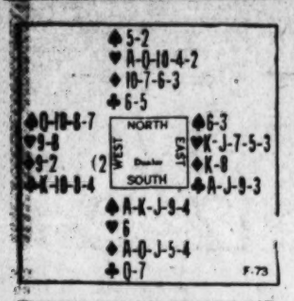
WORK ON BRIDGE



PICKING THE RIGHT SUIT FOR THE TRUMP.

With the above hand at Auction Bridge, South would bid one Spade, North two Hearts, and South three Diamonds which would be the final declaration; West and East not bidding.

At Contract South would bid two Spades (he has a hand which can be valued conservatively at 6½ tricks), North three Hearts, South four Diamonds and North five Diamonds; West and East, as in Auction, being discreetly silent.

If South elected to use the artificial two-Club bid (although his hand is not overly strong for that declaration), South and North would monopolize the bidding as follows: South two Clubs, North two Diamonds, South two Spades, North two No Trumps, South three Diamonds, North five Diamonds; or after South's two Spades, North might properly bid three Hearts, and then South four Diamonds and North five Diamonds.

Whether playing at Auction or Contract, East and West would start off by capturing two Club tricks; after which they would play the part of spectators. Even if West led a Heart to trick 3, North would win with the Ace and capture East's King of trumps by leading a Diamond and finessing. While the Spades could not be established until after North had ruffed two, he would have sufficient trumps for that purpose, and the game would not be a difficult one although Declarer would have to win eleven successive tricks.

Jane Corbett INTERPRETS the MODE

Paris, Jan. 22.

LISTEN, I would like to know what has happened to fringe in the mode? You hear about it here and there, see a bit of it here and there, and I well remember its appearance in the Paris collections of Haute Couture last January, yet it has not seemed to gain in popularity. The big collections start next week, you know * * * and then we will know what's what, oh, positively! There were one or two fringe gowns in the last spring and summer's collection, you know * * * and if there are two or three this year, that will mean something.

Personally, I love fringe, because it gives slimness and grace without too many frills. Too, it is new, so if it and when it does return to style importance, it will be quite acceptable to us all, I am sure.

Notes from Mamzelle's Snappy Note Book:

"Ensembles for morning wear are cut on definite lines, tailor fashion, and are trimmed with reincrusted decoupes and stitching.

"Coats are worn long and are made to go with several dresses.

"Afternoon ensembles are more elaborate, in soft materials, principally supple crepes, velvets, and fabrics with a furry surface. The coats are short or three-quarter length."

* * * * *

I might be sketching a beach pajama for you, but I'm darn cold right where I sit pounding the leaping broncho, should you wish to know it! And that reminds me, where is that swell screen we made last week out of wallpaper? Right at hand to put around me so that them-there wee little midnight breezes don't get so fresh about creeping around my feet. You might want a screen some day, too, you know * * * better send that stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for the leaflet telling you how to make 'em. They are smart and practical * * * and you can always put the leaflet away until you can find the time to make several.

* * * * *

All right, all right, have a bow then! But let your bow be tailored or chic or perkey, according to where it is on your ensemble, and to your own type. Wee bows, flat bows, tailored bows of woolen or leather, huge chiffon bows that become almost a train or a godet * * * they are all so very modish. But choose your bows with care to their effect on your personality, please!

* * * * *

Do you laugh right out loud? That's something for a lovely lady to ask herself, no matter what her sense of humor. Don't break out into a wide-mouthed howl, no! Now, please don't. You don't have to in order to enjoy something, now really, do you!

* * * *

That's what one would call real beach elegance * * * and a little more, if you ask me. But no one asked me, so I up and sketched the velvet beach pajamas sent to me to sketch for you * * * just because I knew you would gasp with me at the audacity. Buttercup yellow, and white, and three piece * * * and you are s'posed to wear 'em on the beach. Awite, you can!

* * * * *

Wives of Tomorrow

FRANCES M'DONALD

TWO SISTERS AND ONE MAN.

IF you had postponed your marriage and lived through a five-year engagement to send your kid sister through college and then she came home and proceeded to vamp your fiance and tear strips out of your life while the man begged you to marry him and forget the incident, what would you do?

That is the nice little question that "Quincy, Mass.," asks us to answer. And it is some question to put to a column that usually concerns itself with mere stingy husbands or boy friends who refuse to come to terms. Here are three people, each one entitled to happiness and each seeking just that. And all three facing an impasse. What would you do?

Dear Frances McDonald: I am 30 years old and have taught for nine years in a private school, where hours are long and work unending. Perhaps it is because I am so tired that things seem so desperately hopeless to me, but truly I feel ready to say that life is too bitter to be borne.

Five years ago I met the man. The only one in my life. Attraction was instant and mutual. We became engaged and he wanted me to marry at once. But I had a young sister not very strong and not very clever. She had to go through college and did not seem able to do anything toward financing the enterprise. So I put off my marriage, did without vacation trips and paid her way. We had no home and no people near, so she boarded out in the Western town where she attended school.

At last she was through. I sent her the funds to come home. She arrived three days before my own school closed. The man volunteered to go meet her at the station. It started right then. In three days' time I became an outsider to them both. I was too dumfounded to take it in at first. But at last it filtered through. I questioned him. He admitted that he had been "seized with some madness" which, however, he "very much regretted," and he ended up by asking me to marry him at once and forget the whole thing. But for me it was not as simple as all that. How could I take him on such terms and under such circumstances? I had some pride if not much and told him I would not consider such an act.

This happened last June. He has avoided our little apartment, although unremitting in his devotion to me—seemingly. On the other hand, sis has managed to meet him and writes to him. He is once more urging marriage. How can I trust him? I have told sis that she can have him. She states that he will never think of her unless I marry some one else. I can not do that, but I can clear out and leave them to their romance. Is that my cue? I should state that there are about a dozen ready to marry sis. One in particular who believes himself engaged to her. Of course, I can live no matter what happens. And will make the best of whatever comes. But what is the answer? Was the whole thing an aberration, as he swears? Or is he saying that to save my feelings? And does that even save what feelings I may have? Where do I come in anyway

QUINCY MASS.

Now sharpen the knives or at least the pencils and start in on sis. Does she get her man, or does she not? Is he worth getting, or is he not? Could this happen to any man? Would it be safe to marry such a man? If it happened to you, would you marry him?

We personally would release him from his chains and let him start all over again to get our confidence, if any, or to seek a fresher love if he desired, meanwhile leaving the whole scene to sis. We would never, under any circumstances, accept a warmed over love or a forced devotion. But then we are no criterion, for we would consider such a man a little lower in grade than a moron if not quite an idiot. And, besides, we consider 30 as the ideal age for adventure and love. So we would sally forth ready for something interesting to happen. And we are willing to wager that something interesting would. And we will wager the same for Quincy Mass.

What about this tangle of fates?

What Today Means to You

"AQUARIUS."

IF January 23 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9 a. m. to 11 a. m. and from 3:30 p. m. to 6 p. m. The danger periods are from noon to 2 p. m. and from 9:30 p. m. to 11 p. m.

Literary, artistic or musical workers will find that the astrological influences favor their efforts on this date. A business associate, or member of the family, may "let you down" on some cherished plan. The evening hours bring disturbing influences, which will breed difficulties in all relationships which have an emotional element.

Children born on this January 23 will have flexible characters, and because of their versatility they will succeed in almost any sphere. They will be lovers of sports, generous and forgiving, but sometimes rather fickle.

If born on January 23, you are found very attractive by a great many people of varying temperaments and abilities, who are captured by your spirit and by your intellect. You are a person one feels one can depend upon, and you inspire trust by your equable disposition. You are always kind and humane, and you delight in giving pleasure to others. You seem to take peace, harmony and sunshine with you—you are a dispeller of gloom. Like most Aquarian individuals, you are a born character reader, and you are seldom mistaken in your judgment. You make constructive, not destructive, criticisms, and you neither mimic nor ride on others' faults. You are most tolerant and very broadminded. You, yourself, incline toward the unconventional.

You have more mental vitality than physical, and you are advised to take plenty of outdoor exercises. Defective circulation is something against which you should guard.

The reaction and coordination of mind and muscle are swift, in your case, and your fingers are not less stupid than your head. You have an inventive streak, and although you may never bring out anything startling, you will always display originality in your work, and will have individual means and ways of doing things. You know how to study, and you like to probe deeply into many subjects which are of interest to you. You like to clear up mysteries. You are not destined to a life of mediocrity.

Successful people born January 23: Richard Alsop, poet. Thomas Todd, jurist, of Kentucky. Silas B. Cobb, pioneer capitalist. Russell Hinman, editor and author. Holbrook Blinn, actor. Josiah P. Willard, ("Josiah Flynt"), author.

Indoor and Outdoor Gardens

REPOTTING BEGONIAS.

REAL flower lovers always own a few begonias. They appreciate the fact that few plants have so many worth-while points to their credit and realize that they are just as desirable for outdoor decoration as they are for winter use in the house.

Begonias are so adaptable; some varieties revel in full sun, others prefer a shadier location. Most varieties flower for months at a time. All varieties are free from disease or insect enemies.

There are two distinct varieties of begonias, the fibrous and the tuberous rooted kinds. The former must be kept growing continually, while the latter demands a rest period of several months during each year. The Gloire de Lorraine was the first modern variety to become popular as a winter-flowering house plant. The year it was introduced it took the world by storm, and every one wanted at least one of these lovely plants.

Later the plant, lovely as it was, proved somewhat of a disappointment. Its beauty was irresistible, but its constitution made it impracticable for house culture. Since then the growers have produced a variety known as the mellior, which is so sturdy that it will even stand some neglect. This was the variety which was sold in such large numbers this past Christmas.

None of the winter-flowering begonias are hard to raise. They require no coaxing and are seemingly happy to unfurl their dainty shell-pink or scarlet blossoms at all times. They have few wants. They must, however, have a temperature of 53 degrees at night and should have a moist atmosphere. In the house the mellior should be exposed to full sun. It resents a sudden drop in temperature or any interruption of routine treatment.

A sudden change, such as a drop in temperature or drying out of the roots, may cause the plants to lose both leaves and flowers.

Another variety of fibrous-rooted begonia that is well worth a place in any living room is a plant known as Otto Hacker, a beautiful red variety. This is large-leaved, with a splendid constitution. The old-fashioned coral begonia is just as beautiful and as desirable today as it was 30 years ago.

Most varieties at this time are making their most active growth, which means that this is the season to repot these plants or to start young plants from cuttings. Cuttings started at this time are sure to do well. As one old gardener tells us, he can just see them grow.

YOUR NAME — WHAT DOES IT MEAN?

By HARRY A. DEFERRARI, PH.D.

The family name "Corbet" (also spelled "Corbett" and "Corbitt") is one of the most distinguished English names of French origin. It was brought to England by Corbet, a noble Norman, who accompanied William the Conqueror. It is a diminutive form of the French "corbeau," meaning "the raven," and was first given as a nickname. Not infrequently, however, it is derived from the original Irish "O Corbain," meaning "the descendant of Corban." "Corban" is a diminutive form of "Corb," and may be translated "the little chariot."

The family name "Kahlmann" is of German origin. It means "the bald-headed man," and was first given as a nickname. A common variation of this name is "Kahle." A certain Hans de Kale is mentioned in a German document of the year 1430.

The family name "Corbin" (also spelled "Corbyn") has come down to us from two quite different sources. Although it is recorded in English documents even before the time of the Hundred Rolls, it is generally of French origin. Its source is the Old French "corbin," meaning "the raven," and it was first given as a nickname. Not infrequently, however, it is derived from the original Irish "O Corbain," meaning "the descendant of Corban." "Corban" is a diminutive form of "Corb," and may be translated "the little chariot."

HOW TO LAY LINOLEUM.

(Department of Agriculture.)

To lay linoleum properly requires some skill, and if the work is not properly done it may buckle and crack. Dealers can often give reliable directions, or, if possible, it is well to employ a trained worker who charges by the square yard and brings with him the needed tools and materials.

There are two ways to fasten linoleum to wood floors—tacking and cementing. The first is the simpler method, but by the second the seams and edges are made watertight and the linoleum is said to give longer service. First of all, the quarter round molding along the foot of the base board should be removed and the linoleum cut in strips running crosswise of the floor board if possible. If it is to be tacked, the strips should be fitted snugly together along the seams, but should not be fastened for three or four weeks for linoleum usually expands when laid on a floor and if tacked down at once will buckle. To give plenty of room for this expansion it is a good plan to trim back the edges next the baseboard for one-fourth or one-half an inch or just enough so that the molding will cover the edge. The molding should then be nailed directly to the baseboard leaving the linoleum free to expand and to be trimmed more next to the baseboard if necessary. The linoleum may be perfectly held in place so that it will not be necessary to be tacked, but if it does, brads should be set one-eighth to one-fourth inch from the edge about 3 to 4 inches apart, and driven well below the surface.

The Life Story of Gen. Wood

By HERMANN HAGEDORN

Governor of Moro Province.

In tropic waters, a vast green crab stretches out an irritated claw after a school of minnows skipping off in the direction of Bornec. The crab is the Island of Mindanao, the minnows are the Sulu Archipelago. Southward along the menacing claw the steamship bears the new governor. On the left is a jagged shore rising 8,000 feet or more to a ridge dark with forests; on the right is the purple placidity of sheltered waters where white-winged lorchas, schooner-rigged, carry cargoes dreamily this way or that across the Sulu Sea, or naked men in queer outrigger canoes float on the swells like huge birds. The air is heavy in the midsummer heat.

On the narrow tip of the crab's claw, barely a half-dozen feet above high tide, lies Zamboanga, gleaming beneath her palms. A stone wharf juts out into deep water and marks the division between the white world and the brown. Westward, lifted on stilts above high tide, stretch thickly along the shore the thatched dwellings of Moro fisherfolk and divers. The sails of their ships, close by, are red or yellow. A flag shaped like an isosceles triangle, scarlet, edged with a ruffle of white, floats on each mast, and here and there brown-bodied men are tooting horns, reminding Allah that they need some wind.

The people of Mindanao and its neighboring islands were, in the main, Mohammedan Malays, ignorant, warlike and proud; though in the uplands were savages who live in trees and caves.

Gen. Wood, having on August 6 taken over the government at Zamboanga, decided to see for himself how matters stood. Forty-eight hours after his arrival he was on board the Borneo, a dispatch boat of 150 tons, which had been put at his disposal, steaming northward. It was a country to stir Wood's blood. Along the beaches flocked white snipe and wild pigeons; along the muddy highway, the trees rose up gigantically, hung with lianas and intoxicatingly decked with orchids. Birds sang in green depths, monkeys wove their way among interlacing boughs, parrots squawked like outraged prima donnas.

Twenty-five hundred feet above the sea Gen. Wood came upon Lake Lanao, stretching almost 40 miles southward, ringed with green farming country and rising on the east to lofty ridges.

Here and there Moro villages could be seen, deceptively peaceful in the pastoral landscape. Gen. Wood became acquainted with the head men, powwowing at Vicars, palavering at Malabang. Wherever he went Gen. Wood found looting and murder, oppression and misery. Did not the big fish in the sea swallow the little fish? asked the dattos. There was no incentive for men to work for anything beyond a mere hand-to-mouth living. By unjust fines or direct robbery, the property of the weak gravitated inevitably into the hands of the strong, and men who complained to their datto were fortunate if they were not fined heavily in addition.

Visits Jolo Potentate.

Wood went to Jolo to call on a potentate, with whom in a rash moment the United States had made a treaty. The Sultan of Sulu was nobody, but he had had a gifted mother who had, it was maliciously rumored, shortly before her demise, applied to the Philippine Commission at Manila for poison to assist her in protecting her son's inheritance. The Sultan had a genealogy like that of the King of Spain and a tenuous prestige as the head of Islam along the Sulu Sea, but he had no machinery of government behind him, and no force, moral or physical. He accepted the allowance which the American Government gave him on the understanding that he keep the Moros off the backs of the Americans and other foreigners in Sulu and Mindanao, and promptly proclaimed that the United States was paying him tribute, which was correct; but he made no effort to hold in leash his brethren of the faith. Of late, American soldiers had protected their own; but under the agreement with the sultan they had no right to interfere when Moros robbed, murdered and enslaved each other, and could take no effective action even to keep out of the towns the fanatical juramentados, running amuck for the sake of a high seat in paradise.

The Island of Jolo was in particularly bad shape. With three or four companies of infantry and cavalry and a battery of artillery—450 men in all—Wood proceeded to Jolo.

Under the dark blue canopy, at the foot of wooded hills, the town lay on its sunlit harbor clothed in gaudy splendor of green and gold, scarlet and amethyst.

The Sultan of Sulu, amid the enchantments of Jolo, had a setting out of proportion to the paste jewel that he was.

"The most glorious Sultan, son of the Prophet, &c., &c.," wrote McCoy to his mother, "has been over in Singapore for three months spending and gambling till the last pearl from his waistcoat was gone, when he came back for more. And he had arrived on a North German Lloyd boat the day before with many new wives and hangers-on. * * * Since his return from Sangapore he is copying the Sultan of Johore, wears golf stockings and a tweed suit, a black turban; instead of the pair of green breeches, purple jacket, pearls as buttons for which he has long been famous. It is rumored that some white acquaintances he had enjoyed in Singapore relieved him of the famous pearls."

Confers With Sultan.

Gen. Wood had a conference with the Sultan and his prime minister, Hadji Butu.

Wood: "What does the Sultan receive now from the people in Borneo?"

Sultan: "Sometimes it does not come. The other day I clealmed 2,000,000 of the English government, but they did not answer me."

Wood: "But you get 5,000 pesos a year?"

Sultan: "Yes: my grandfather did not know anything about money; they arranged it for 5,000 pesos."

Hadji Butu: "That was about 160 years ago."

Wood: "At present your rights as a nation are nothing. I am telling you the plain truth, without decorations. Spain gave us a clear title to the Sulu Islands, and now, while we don't recognize any rights, we want to be fair. We recognize in the sultan the descendant of many other sultans. We feel that he should be given something to live on, but we don't come to him as a cow to be milked, but rather as one comes to a man in distress—to give him assistance. We do not talk in millions, but in hundreds."

Sultan: "The Spaniards were not very rich, but I had enough to live on. The Americans are richer. I expect as much now as from the Sapniards, or more."

Wood: "We have a saying that 'He who expects little will not be disappointed.' I know that the Sultan, as head of the church, wants to live a simple and unocsentatious life. What did you get from the Sapniards?"

Sultan: "Nothing."

After that admission, the negotiations are simple.

From Jolo, Gen. Wood took his miniature army slowly eastward the length of the island. The landscape was entrancing.

"Instead of wading through gore," McCoy wrote, "it was the most delightful promenade since the Puerto Rico campaign."

As Wood proceeded, the dattos, one after another, came to meet him, each on the border of his domain, and escorted him to their cottas. The communities were curiously patriarchal, each isolated, with a strip of no-man's land around; strongly fortified, yet hospitable. For hours on hours Wood sat with the chieftains while the talk flowed to and fro through the uncertain medium of a half-breed interpreter. Talk was incense to Moro nostrils. If anything could mitigate the pain of having to end a war, it was the prospect of a peace conference.

They talked of robbery, murder and slavery. There was one sultan who, Wood had heard, relished, as one of the principal prerogatives of his office, the right to have any likely young lady whom his eye fell upon taken for his harem. There would be no more of this, Wood ordered.

Sultan Enters Protest.

The sultan protested vigorously.

Gen. Wood pointed out that the Koran permitted him four wives, and that was enough for any man.

"Then what's the use," wailed the potentate, "of being sultan at all?"

The strongest man on the island, Panglima Hassan, came himself to Wood's camp, and led Wood and his staff through 7 miles of prosperous farms of tapioca and coconuts, corn, rice and fruits, to his own fortress and home. As they rode into the plain around the cotta, pandemonium broke loose. Flashing their shields and swords and shouting a wild welcome, 500 spearmen came running forward. In the center of a large circle they danced barbaric dances.

"I had taken the precaution of having our troops ready for trouble and magazines and chambers filled and ready for immediate use," Gen. Wood wrote in his diary August 28. "Cavalry ready for action, also the battery. There were probably a couple of thousand Moros here and it would have been very easy to have had serious trouble if anything went wrong."

But no hostile move marred Hassan's graceful genuflection to the inevitable. Wood might, indeed, have done with a little less of the Panglum's hospitality. The region had recently suffered from a devastating epidemic of cholera, which, it was estimated, had carried off 10 per cent or more of the population. But the Moros took the scourge philosophically. It was all fate—God's-come-and-go, as they put it. To Wood and his staff this attitude of mind presented interesting possibilities.

Egg Problem Avoided.

On any one of those magnificent but unwashed plates of hammered brass which Hassan's slaves presented death might be awaiting.

Gen. Wood had an inspiration. Medical orders, he said, regretfully, confined him and all his staff to hard-boiled eggs. The Panglima gave instructions. The eggs were brought in, all carefully removed from the shell and heavily thumb-marked.

Gen. Wood did not hesitate. He had forgotten to add, he said, that the doctor had limited them to the yolks of the eggs. But he did the peeling himself.

After a dance of the women slaves Wood on his part offered an instructive divertissement with target practice by the mounted batteries and machine guns. In return, Hassan ordered a charge of his men. They came gorgeously, yelling and brandishing spears and barongs. After that Wood and the Panglima understood one another perfectly.

On his return to Zamboanga Wood threw himself into the work of organizing the civil government of the province.

Without Divine Rights.

"It is a difficult proposition," Wood wrote his friend, J. St Loe Strachey, editor of the London Spectator, January 6, 1904, "to establish the kind of government among these Moros which we Americans want, which is, in a way, a government altogether different from the form of government which perhaps suggests itself to Englishmen under similar circumstances. You are quite content to maintain rajahs and sultans and other species of royalty, but we, with our plain ideas of doing things, find these gentlemen outside of our scheme of government, and so have to start at this kind of proposition a little differently. Our policy is to develop individualism among these people and little by little teach them to stand upon their own feet, independent of petty chieftains. In order to do this the chief or headman has to be given some position of more or less authority under the government, but he ceases to have any divine rights.

"We are starting in, planning to give each head of a family 40 acres of land, securing it to him under a simple procedure, and requiring the approval of the district to protect these simple people against fraud. The chiefs, big and little, we intend to give an amount of land in accordance with their position and previous authority. They will be made judges of the tribal courts, peace officers, &c., and will be consulted in all affairs pertaining to their following, but the people themselves will also be consulted and heard whenever their interests are in any way concerned.

City Governments Built.

"Municipal or town governments are being built up wherever there are enough educated people to furnish the necessary personnel, and a certain number of neighboring Moslems or other non-Christians who are sufficiently intelligent are brought in and invited to discuss questions upon which they may in future be called upon to act."

For ten days he is in Zamboanga laying the foundations; then he is off on another inspection trip to Lake Lanao, where he runs into a dusky Iliad. One of the local chiefs has run out with a slave girl belonging to another, and the bereft datto is clamoring at the gates of Troy. The warfare runs true to form, consisting mainly of high talk and the shouting of taunts.

As Wood and his staff approached the besiegers, they noted a group of Moros sitting on what seemed to be a piece of bamboo flooring.

"We were a bit leery of that bunch," McCoy wrote his mother. "They acted queerly, very noticeable when Dorey passed cigarettes to the chiefs. They failed to come over to help themselves but sent slave boys. So the troop of cavalry was quickly cautioned to smother them on first signs. Finally when the chiefs gave orders to move off, they arose and the mystery was an old brass cannon of the eighteenth century, some 8 feet long, lying on the ground and pointed at us. They had squatted right over it and had the drop on us. It took most of the army to carry it off, tenderly laid on a bamboo frame."

"The cannon," Wood wrote in his diary, "was loaded with slugs. * * * The fellow on the breech had a lighted cigarette ready to turn it loose at us if occasion required. A very interesting spectacle."

Tomorrow's installment of the "Life Story of Gen. Leonard Wood deals further with his administration in Moro Province of the Philippines, his command of the Philippines Department in Manila and transfer to Governors Island to command the Department of the East in 1908.

IN THE PLAYHOUSE

By JOHN J. DALY

WHEN the seat sale for "America's Sweetheart" opened at the National Theater yesterday morning, at seven bells, the charge of the ticket brigade began with such fury that by midday not a seat was left past the twentieth row, for the opening performance. "America's Sweetheart" is the Schwab and Mandel musical comedy, featuring Gus Shy, Jack Whiting and Jeanne Aubert. It is now in its try-out period in Pittsburgh, where it received a grand send-off, and will arrive in Washington next Monday for what promises to be a grand and glorious opening.

* * * *

Here is real contrast for you: While the National Theater, next week, will be cluttered with 100 or more people—beautiful chorines and gorgeous show girls—the stage at the Belasco will be in possession of one lone entertainer, Miss Ruth Draper. It is a tribute to the genius of Ruth Draper that she needs no one but her own sweet self to accompany her. She stands today at the height of her glory, a career she started not so many years ago by giving simple monologues, character sketches of simple people, some of which are now elaborated into what might be called little plays. In one sketch—"Three Women and Mr. Clifford"—Miss Draper portrays the three women, with Mr. Clifford an off-stage character. This one-woman show begins next Monday night in the Lafayette Square playhouse.

* * * *

When "In the Best of Families" leaves Washington—it is now playing at the Belasco—this drama of consternation, brought about by a foundling on a doorstep, will move into a theater at Jackson Heights, N. Y.

preparatory to its descent on Broadway. One of the youngest producers in the business, Mr. Thomas Kilpatrick, of North Carolina and "Down Home," stands as the sponsor for the Anita Hart-Maurice Braddell opera. The authors are natives of England. Miss Hart arrived in Washington yesterday for the first time and saw her brain-child on the stage.

* * * *

The Theater Guild's next production will be Arthur Schnitzler's "The Lonely Way," a tragic-comedy. It goes into rehearsal shortly under the direction of Philip Moeller. Present plans are that it will be followed by "Miracle at Verdun," the play by the late Hans Chlumberg which the guild acquired following its successful presentation in Leipzig recently. Both plays will be produced outside of New York, either in Washington or Baltimore, and it is expected that "Miracle at Verdun" will proceed to Chicago following its opening.

* * * *

Now that the verdicts are all in, the consensus of New York opinion seems to be that Mr. Philip Barry's play, "Tomorrow and Tomorrow," is as subtle a piece of stage writing as the stage has seen in some time, and that Mr. George Kelley, whose play, "Philip Goes Forth," also premiered in Washington, has not come up to his usual standard as a playwright. All hands admit, however, that "Philip Goes Forth" is streaked with some mighty fine theater. To date, both plays are classed as hits.

* * * *

Tomorrow morning the Junior Theater will close its fourth series in Washington, covering three years of playing and 31 plays. Simultaneous with this closing, announcement comes word that a new series will open at the Wardman Park Theater on St. Valentine's Day, February 14. Five plays will be presented in as many weeks, the list to be selected from a general vote cast by the subscribers.

Oliver M. Saylor, who has heralded the arrival of many delicious theatrical morsels—including all of Morris Gest's importations, the Chauve Souris, for one—rushes a special delivery to announce the forthcoming first play by Roland Pertwee, British dramatist, novelist and actor. It is called "Heat Wave," and will get its start in life at the National Theater on the night of February 9. Basil Ratthbone, last seen here in the unsuccessful "A Kiss of Importance," has the lead role.

Hollywood Screen Life

By HUBBARD KEAVY.

Hollywood.—Stars of yesterday are quickly forgotten, even where they were once best known. This man in his heydey was paid $10,000 weekly for 52 weeks, said to be more than any player ever was paid in a single year, before or since.

WILLIAM FARNUM

Now he is playing character roles at a salary which is a small fraction of what he used to receive.

He came back to the studio where he once was king pin, for the first time in several years. Entering a gate with other players and extras, a watchman with a "Hey, you" demanded to know where he was going and why.

He was admitted when he gave his name—William Farnum.

No Diction Rule Book.

Talkies may teach listeners-in to pay more attention to their diction, but they can not be expected to standardize English.

Conrad Nagel, meticulous in his speech, may go on pronouncing it "eye-ther" for the rest of his movie days, but Ponca City cow hands and a lot of the rest of us will never be convinced.

Motion pictures, demanding realism as they do, will have to be realistic in pronunciation as in everything else. Western dramas will require a Western accent, and characters in a London drawing room set will have to stick to the language habits of that environment.

The Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences, the court of the movies, has decided it would be hopeless and useless to try to standardize pronunciation.

Fame Is Like That.

When Esther Ralston was on a vaudeville trip she was met and greeted by the mayor of a large Midwest city. She visited a hospital and other such places celebrities are expected to go. The mayor accompanied her.

At the conclusion of the tour, she says, the mayor thanked her. Then he asked her name.

Guiding Your Child

By MRS. AGNES LYNE.

Indifference.

There is one means by which the adult may take all the satisfaction out of the naughtiness which springs from the desire to attract attention.

The child has no way to combat an attitude of indifference on the part of his elders.

Of what use is to scream and kick when being taken to bed if mother acts as though nothing unusual were happening and goes right on undressing you without even bothering to scold?

Where is the fun in making faces before the company at the dinner table or in turning somersaults at a tea party if nobody seems to notice whether you do it or not?

The absence of an audience robs any performance of its savour.

Children are quick, of course, to notice the difference between real and pretended indifference. It is useless to pretend you don't mind when you do.

Suppose your child has decided to get a little notice by turning on the radio full blast when you are trying to talk with a friend. You have to shout to make yourself heard. The child knows your pretended indifference will soon break down before very real annoyance.

Don't act indifference that you can't genuinely carry through. On the other hand, don't let petty annoyances betray you into giving the child exactly what he wants—attention at any price.

When a child is making such a nuisance of himself that something must be done about it, deal with him with a minimum of words and emotional display. Prompt and quiet exile from the scene of misbehavior is usually an effective and convenient cure.

The Beauty of Motherhood

THE crown of womanhood is motherhood. But many women face the ordeal of maternity without sufficient preparation. At such times and later, the mother should take a vegetable tonic, sold by druggists and known in almost every home as Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription. If you need medical advice, write Dr. Pierce's Clinic in Buffalo, N. Y. Enclose the question blank found wrapped around all Dr. Pierce's medicines and receive professional advice free; or, send 10c for acquaintance package of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. Thousands of women have testified as to its efficacy. We have space here to print only two of the letters received from this vicinity.

"During my first expectant period, I was in a very nervous and run-down state of health, my kidneys bothered me, I suffered a lot with my back. I was advised to take Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, and I did not have any more trouble, my nerves were calm, my kidneys began to function naturally, and I kept well and strong the rest of the time and my baby was very strong and healthy, weighed ten and one-half pounds at birth."—Mrs. Bessie M. Flohr, 32 South Jonathan St., Hagerstown, Md.

"I have taken Dr. Pierce's medicine at different times and find it great. I have used his 'Favorite Prescription' during expectancy, and it surely is a great help to women. I also took it when the babies were small, as it will make a woman strong, and the baby, too, seems to do better if the mother uses Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. I surely do praise this medicine."—Mrs. Garland Yates, Ally, Va.

WASHINGTON: FRIDAY, JANUARY 23, 1931.

LEAD AT STAKE IN HIGH SCHOOL CONTESTS TODAY

Westbrook Pegler Says

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—The latest adventures of Arthur Shires, the baseball player, indicate that the young fellow is a little bit too impossible for so dignified a business as major league baseball, although I am very broad minded and would not lose confidence in him if he were just fairly impossible.

Mr. Shires was housed up temporarily on a recent evening and the dispatches in the newspapers stated that the police officers found a brass boxing glove on his person, which report, if true, would require explanation. To be sure, Arthur had been recently married and a man has a right to take steps to defend himself, but I do not think that even the most liberal interpretation of the situation would justify him in carrying the brass boxing glove, and the patrons of the sport, married and single, will be likely to disapprove.

DEFENSIVE STEPS ARE JUSTIFIED

So I do not think the customers will be seeing much, if any, more of Arthur Shires in the major league ball yards.

The last time I saw Mr. Shires, with the Washington ball club, he was conducting himself very modestly. He insisted that he had gone in for clowning as a deliberate policy to make himself conspicuous and attract a personal following of customers, thus enhancing his pay roll value to his employers. But his methods were extravagant and when he took to busting his manager on the nose to stimulate his personal publicity, the executives of the first disciplined him severely.

And, now, with the Washington team, one of the most monotonous and spiritless in the game, he was serving quietly as understudy to Joe Judge, a ball player about fifteen years older than himself and one of the least noticeable characters in the entire industry. Joe Judge, at his age and with no more individuality in the quiet efficiency of his work than a sheet of blank paper, was not even challenged in his job by a young fellow determinedly a showman who was not a bad first-baseman either.

CHALLENGE TO JUDGE FAILS

Although Mr. Shires has his rational moments and some of his antics undoubtedly were studied, I am inclined to suspect that he is naturally too mischievous for the major leagues. The proprietors of these firms, with the single exception of Mr. Sam Breadon, who owns the Cardinals, are elderly men who regard the athlete as a member of the employe class and, therefore, the natural enemies of their own class, which is, of course, the capitalist class.

I feel that Mr. Shires was imposed upon to a certain extent by the profession of journalism, as he states that he never thought of cultivating personal eccentricities until the correspondents attached to the White Sox in their training camp requested him to do something extraordinary to relieve the monotony of covering the gloomy exercises of a lot of thoroughly repressed young men.

BRASS MITT HIS OWN IDEA

Still, I doubt that any of them ever suggested the brass boxing glove which he is supposed to have had in his pocket the other night. If he did have it, that probably was his own inspiration and the proprietors will be slow to invite him back. He was harmful enough working on Lena Blackburne with his nude visits. I just wonder if he did use the nude fists on Lena.

Two Cleveland Stars Spurn 1931 Contracts

Cleveland, Jan. 22 (A.P.).—Wesley Ferrell, one of the two best pitchers in 1930, and Eddie Morgan, hard-hitting first baseman, returned their 1931 contracts to Billy Evans, general manager of the Cleveland Baseball Club, unsigned today.

Both were offered substantial increases over last year, but they were not satisfied, Evans said.

Evans said he does not consider Ferrell and Morgan holdouts unless they fail to report for spring training.

Turner Obtains Park For Wrestling Shows

Joe Turner, former middleweight wrestling champion, who has turned promoter, yesterday closed with the Washington Baseball Club for the use of Griffith Stadium for six nights during the coming diamond year.

Definite dates have not been selected as yet, but Turner plans to make up his schedule shortly and to bring some of the Nation's top-notch grapplers here for each of these cards.

British Speed Ace, in U.S., Fatalist

By FOSTER HAILEY.

NEW YORK, Jan. 22 (A.P.).—Capt. Malcolm Campbell, soft-spoken British racing driver, and his slim, stream-lined machine, named for a bluebird, but more powerful than 1,000 horses, arrived in the United States today for an assault on the world's automobile speed record.

Some time after February 1, Capt. Campbell will hurl his Blue Bullet along the sands of Daytona Beach, Fla., at a speed he hopes will take him over a measured mile in less than 15 seconds.

The 1,450-horsepower harnessed in the motor of his Blue Bird II must carry him past the mile markers twice at that speed if he is to break the record of 231 miles an hour set on the same course in 1929 by the late Sir Henry Segrave, fellow Englishman.

Campbell Uncertain About Speed.

Will he do it?

Capt. Campbell himself would not say today on his arrival on the liner Homeric.

"I really don't know what my machine will do," he said. "I've had no opportunity to test it. The margin is so small that no one can say they are gong to break a record.

"The difference between Sir Henry's record of 231 miles an hour and 240 is only two-fifths of a second. That's not very much, you know. No, I wouldn't want to say what my Blue Bird will do."

And then he added:

Capt. Campbell was asked if he didn't hesitate sometimes because of the danger involved; he had just said Mrs. Campbell had not accompanied him because she "didn't feel up to it."

"I've seen 'it' in front of me so many times," he answered, his face grave. "I'm a fatalist. You never go before your time. If my time is up I'm ready to go; there's no use grousing."

Speed Driver Since 1905.

Capt. Campbell has been driving one kind or another of a racing machine since 1905 when he won his first gold medal in a motorcycle race in England. He built an airplane and flew it in 1909. During the war he was in the Royal Fying Corps. He is the only man living who has driven an automobile faster than 200 miles an hour. The others—Segrave, Keech, Lockart—already have gone to the racing driver's valhalla, gone as Capt. Campbell would like to go when his time comes, in full flight, the tingle of great speed in their veins, the whine of an open throttled engine in their ears. He is 46 and probably the oldest of the front rank drivers.

Kaye Don Drives Segrave Boat at 100-Mile Speed

London, Jan. 22 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Kaye Don, famous racing motorist, today made an unofficial motor boat speed record of 100 miles an hour in Miss England II on Lough Neagh, County Antrim, Ireland, thus beating the official record of 98.7 miles per hour made by the late Sir Henry Segrave in the same boat last summer on Lake Windemere, when the latter was killed through the craft striking a floating branch immediately after his record-breaking dash.

The boat, which sank at the time, was later raised and recently reconditioned. Though the water was choppy today, Don made a record which was not officially timed with the throttle only half open. If the weather is good enough he will make another and possibly final trial tomorrow, when he hopes to exceed 110 miles per hour.

These trials are preliminary to Don taking the boat to Buenos Aires, where the Prince of Wales is expected to watch him make a bid for an official speed record.

TRIBE SEEKS KAMM FOR FONSECA

Chisox Without First Baseman After Sale of "Bud" Clancy.

CHICAGO, Jan. 22 (A.P.).—Reports that the White Sox would trade Third Baseman Willie Kamm to the Cleveland Indians for First Baseman Lew Fonseca, American League batting champion in 1929, grew today.

The release by the White Sox of "Bud" Clancy, regular first baseman, to Jersey City, of the International League, stirred up the report. The White Sox are left with no regular at the bag except possibly Johnny Watwood, who alternated between first and the outfield last year.

Kamm was purchased by the White Sox from San Francisco, of the Pacific Coast League, in 1923 for cash and players reported to amount to $100,000 or more. Last season he was benched for reasons never explained. It was understood at the close of the season that he was on the market.

Kamm Long Sought By Indians.

Cleveland, Jan. 22 (A.P.).—Billy Evans, general manager of the Cleveland Indians, has sought to obtain Willie Kamm, Chicago third baseman, for some time. He offered to trade Lew Fonseca for Kamm at the major league meeting in New York, but the White Sox turned thumbs down at that time.

With the release of the veteran Joe Sewell, the Tribe will be all the more in need of an experienced third sacker.

Horton Smith Leads In Movie Tournament

Los Angeles, Calif., Jan. 22 (A.P.). Horton Smith, New York professional, and Herman Barron, professional of Portchester, N. Y., topped the qualifiers in the Motion Picture Industries $4,000 match play golf tournament here today, with cards aggregating 140 for 36 holes.

Smith had a 67—73-140, and Barron a 69—71—140. Behind the two came Abe Espinosa, Chicago professional with 74—68—152. One stroke behind Espinosa was Eddie Loos, also from Chicago, with 71—72—143.

Among the 83 starters who failed to win places in the list of 32 who qualified for the match play beginning tomorrow were Charles Lacey, New York, with a 154; Wiffy Cox, Brooklyn, 154, and Leo Diegel, Agua Caliente, Mexico pro, with 158.

Gallaudet Five Plays At Towson Tonight

Gallaudet makes its first official appearance of the sketchy college basket ball week tonight, entraining for Towson, Md., where the Maryland State Normal Basketers will be met at 8 o'clock.

The Blues look like the victors tonight, having performed well against Maryland and other strong outfits, while the Marylanders have shown little form this year.

Strayers, holders of third place in the Washington Collegiate Basket Ball Conference, drop down to Fredericksburg tonight for a game with the Fredericksburg Collegians.

In the remaining game of the night and the only one within walking distance of local fans, the Georgetown Freshmen and Bliss hook up at Silver Spring in a game which looks like another scalp for the pupils of Freddy Mesmer.

Hitchcock Only Poloist Ranked at Ten Goals

New York, Jan. 22 (A.P.).—With Tommy Hitchcock, the American captain, again placed at the head of the list as the only ten-goal player, the United States Polo Association today raised the 1931 handicap ratings of two internatoinalists, Eric Pedley, of California, and Winston Guest, of New York, from eight to nine goals.

The recognition of Pedley's sensational play as No. 1 in the international cup series with England last September resulted in the highest rating he has ever had. Guest formerly was rated at 9 goals, but reduced by one last summer.

The handicaps of two Texans, Cecil Smith and Rube Williams, were increased, the former from 7 to 8, the latter from 6 to 7.

Oberst, Notre Dame, To Coach Canisius

Buffalo, N. Y., Jan. 22 (A.P.).—Appointment of Gene Oberst, star tackle on the Notre Dame team of 1923, as football coach at Canisius College under a two-year contract, was announced today.

For the past two years, Oberst has been football coach at Washington and Lee University, Lexington, Va.

In addition to starring on the Notre Dame eleven, Oberst also was N. A. A. U. champion javelin thrower and placed third in the Olympic contests in 1921.

Old Line Five Wins From Hopkins

Second Half Offensive Gives Maryland Victory, 33-20.

Berger, Ronkin and Chalmers Leaders in Triumph.

Special to The Washington Post.

BALTIMORE, Md., Jan. 22.—Maryland University's mighty aggregation of basket ball players encountered little opposition here tonight in overpowering the Johns Hopkins five by the score, 33-20, before one of the largest collegiate basket ball crowds of the year.

Maryland's superiority was not outstanding until the second half when the intricate cut backs and pivot plays of the College Park outfit were brought out in full force and took heavy toll among the slightly bewildered Blue Jays.

It was around Berger, Chalmers and Ronkin that these plays revolved, and the second half saw usually one of these players able to shake himself loose from his guarding and find the cords for telling baskets.

Hopkins Puts Up Keen Fight.

Johns Hopkins surprised many of its followers by putting up the choicest sort of battle in the first half, trailing by but 16-12 when the half-time whistle blew. The Kelly brothers played the better basket ball of the Baltimoreans.

The Old Liners were not to be held off after the first half and quickly gave notice of piling up a commanding lead, when Berger cut loose with a basket and a foul to start matters going after the rest period. Berger, Old Line football satellite, was the bright star of the game, leading the scoring with 11 points and displaying dazzling dribbling and passing speed.

THE first daily paper is said to have been published in Germany in 1615, but it wasn't until 1702 that a daily paper was published in the English language. The "Daily Currant" as it was called, was published by Elizabeth Mallet, and consisted of a single page of two columns. The Currant contained little reading matter except foreign news, and was without an editorial department, the editor claiming that "other people had sense enough to make reflections for themselves.

Jerome K. Bartlett procured an over supply of license plates that the State authorities of Idaho had planned to junk. With these he covered his house that he had recently built, thus solving the problem of weather-proofing in a most efficient and economical way. The plates, being coated with durable enamel, will save Bartlett the trouble of painting his home for several years.

U. S. FINALS ASSURED IN CANADA

Lott, Bell, Van Ryn, Hall Advance to Semifinals.

MONTREAL, Que., Jan. 22 (A.P.). Four players from the United States swept into the semifinal round of singles in the Canadian indoor tennis championship today. Tomorrow afternoon, George Lott, of Chicago, winner of the title in three of the past four years, will meet Berkley Bell, of Austin, Tex., in one semifinal round match, while John Van Ryn, of East Orange, N. J., clashes with J. Gilbert Hall, of South Orange, N. J., winner of the title two years ago, in the other. The last Canadian in the singles, C. W. Leslie, of Montreal, was eliminated in the quarter-final round today by Van Ryn, 6—2, 6—2.

Lott, after beating D. P. Hatch, of Montreal, 8—6, 6—1, in the second round, defeated G. C. Pimpton, of Boston, Mass., 6—1, 6—2, in the quarter finals.

Bell's victims were Allen McMartin, of Montreal, 6—1, 6—0, and L. B. Rice, Boston, 9—7, 6—4. Rice had provided the one big upset of the day in the second round when he whipped Dr. Jack Wright, of Montreal, first ranking Canadian player, 5—7, 6—2, 6—4.

Hall Scores Easy Victory.

Hall easily defeated W. M. Martin, of St. Louis, 6—2, 6—1, in the second round and scored convincingly in the quarter-finals over Eddie Jacobs, of the University of Pittsburgh, 6—3, 6—2. Jacobs had eliminated the Canadian internationalist, Dr. Arthur W. Ham, of Toronto, 6—1, 8—6, in the second round.

Van Ryn's second round victim was the Chicago star, Emmett Pare, who bowed to the Davis Cup player in three sets, 6—3, 2—6, 6—2.

Preacher to Try Hand At Wrestling Profession

Philadelphia, Jan. 22 (A.P.).—The Rev. Charles H. Urban, of this city, who played football at the University of Pennsylvania, will try his hand at professional wrestling. He signed a contract today and arrangements will be made here tomorrow for his first match.

Since leaving the University of Pennsylvania, Mr. Urban has been attending a divinity school and formerly preached in a local church.

Mr. Urban is in his thirties; is married and has two children.

Schmeling Draws Fire From German Group

Berlin, Jan. 22 (A.P.).—Max Schmeling, German heavyweight, continues to incur the wrath of boxing commissions here and there. Now his home board, the German Boxing Comsion, has worked up quite a peeve at him.

The commission wirelessed a sharp request to him today aboard the liner Europa, bound for New York, asking that he explain immediately a newspaper interview published here. He was quoted as saying the commission "never knew anything about fisticuffs; never showed real interest in his or any other German boxer's foreign achievements; but always found him home when it needed money."

Schmeling has been involved for two years in disputes with the New York State Athletic Commission, which recently withdrew recognition of him as the heavyweight champion. He was also involved in a long-drawn-out managerial squabble in New York.

Dempsey in Hospital, Due to Infected Hand

The infection developed after Dempsey engaged in a gymnasium workout last Monday. He thought little of it at the time, since it appeared to be merely a small cut. Complications set in, however, and the entire hand was swollen twice its normal size today. The infection had spread to the arm.

Dr. Frank Brennan, who has treated Dempsey for injuries after previous fights, ordered the former champion to the hospital after an examination.

With proper treatment, Dr. Brennan said, Dempsey should not be confined more than 36 or 48 hours. His condition otherwise was satisfactory.

Whitney's Easter Hero Assigned Top Weight for Grand National

LIVERPOOL, Eng., Jan. 22 (A.P.). The dubious honor of carrying the top weight in the Grand National to be run over the gruelling Aintree course on March 27 was assigned today to Easter Hero, owned by the American sportsman, John Hay Whitney. The Whitney ace was allotted 175 pounds.

B. D. Davis' Gib was assigned second to top weight with 173 pounds, while Shaun Goilin, last year's winner, gets in at 172. Gregalach, winner in 1929, is bracketed with East Galawat at 168 pounds. Sir Lindsay, Whitney's other entry, which placed third last year, has been asked to carry 160 pounds over the 4-mile journey. No fewer than 30 of the 85 contenders are bunched at the bottom of the weight scale with 147 pounds.

Easter Hero probably will face the barrier the favorite, as he has already given evidence of being in great form. A few days ago he made his 1931 debut and won a 2-mile steeplechase by twelve lengths, taking every jump perfectly. The big Whitney jumper was one of the favorites last year until going wrong a few days before the renewal of the steeplechase classic.

The race this year is restricted to horses 6 years old and upward, which have placed first, second or third in a steeplechase of 3 miles or upward, or in any steeplechase over the Aintree course.

MARYLAND U. CUBS BEAT CENTRAL

School Five, Held to 2 Points for Half, Bows, 48-19.

MARYLAND University's Freshmen Basket Ball Team snowed under another local high school outfit yesterday at College Park, when Central was taken into camp by the score of 48-19 in a game which saw the scholastics score but 2 points in the entire first half, so airtight was the play of Old Line plebes.

Chase and Vincent showed a brand of game which stamped them as more than capable of stepping into Maryland Varsity uniforms if the rules permitted. Chase, with 16 points, led the scoring of the day. The Maryland regulars went out of the game at the half in favor of the reserves.

Orioles Sell Stewart, Former Nat, to Seattle

John "Stuffy" Stewart, former Nat second sacker, figured in a deal yesterday between the Baltimore Orioles and the Seattle club of the Pacific Coast League which will see him performing for the coast club in 1931, and Joe Cassarella, 22-year-old Seattle twirler, vested in an Oriole uniform.

Stewart was traded to the Orioles by the Nats last winter with Jim Weaver in a deal which brought George Loepp, outfielder, to the Nationals. Weaver shone brilliantly for Baltimore and was advanced to the Yanks for a large purchase price, but Stewart failed to shine and played only part of the year for Baltimore. He was best noted for his speed on the bases.

Ban Johnson Faces Operation on His Foot

Hot Springs, Ark., Jan. 22 (A.P.).—The Hot Springs New Era says today Ban Johnson, former president of the American League, must undergo an operation for removal of the little toe of his right foot in the near future. Physicians are trying to build up his vitality for the operation.

Johnson came to St. Joseph's Infirmary here last Friday after four months' illness in St. Louis. The paper says the infection developed from an injury received some time ago when someone in a crowd stepped on Johnson's toe.

Tests Faced By Eastern And Tech

Tied Leaders to Play Central and Business Teams.

Crucial Stage in Race Finds 2 of Rivals Weakened.

Standing of Teams

	Won	Lost	Pct.
Eastern	2	1	.667
Tech	2	1	.667
Western	2	2	.500
Central	1	2	.333
Business	1	2	.333

By BOB CONSIDINE.

EASTERN and Tech, tied for first place in the high school series, meet Central and Business, tied for last place, today in the high school basket ball series games at Tech High Gym commencing at 3:45 o'clock.

The course of games has brought the clubs into an area of the schedule where the loss of a contest amounts to a catastrophic state of affairs so far as that team's championship hopes are concerned. Central and Business are particularly in that position today, both having two losses already checked up against their names, and both due to play the admittedly two strongest clubs in the series.

The series seems to have boiled down definitely to Eastern and Tech, with only Western—idle today—standing a chance of besting these two for first place. Neither Eastern nor Tech can afford to lose today, a drop into second place awaiting either team which loses, providing, of course, the other wins.

Noonan in Better Condition.

Eastern hopes took a bright turn yesterday by the announcement that Big Bill Noonan, center and high scorer of the Lincoln Parkers, would be on hand for at least a part of the game today and in much more improved physical shape than that which he displayed during his brief appearance in the Business game. Conversely Central was further beset by the ultimatum of Coach Coggins that Gene Swift, capable guard, would not be permitted to play unless by permission of the physician treating the injured rib of the hard-working redhead tosser.

Eastern remains the odd team of the league, beating the defending champions in the first game of the series and losing to the cellar residents in the last played. It is a team of potshotters, held together mostly by the generalship of Dallas Shirley, cocky guard. Violent fluctuations mark its individual functioning. Lieb, who started out in early season as potentially the big point scorer of the year, has failed to come through offensively; on the other hand, Capt. Barney Kane, has not only saved his pots from the possession of Waters, sterling sub forward, but has improved as much as any player in the series.

Central Without Consistent Scorer.

Central has yet to show a consistent scorer on its squad. Henry Broadbent, shifted to guard to fill the vacancy left by Swift, has shown a tolerable consistency at potshotting, but the others swing between such shooting skill as shown in the 39-20 defeat of Business and in the 21-27 loss to Western.

The surprising victory of Business over Eastern last Tuesday has given the oft-browbeaten Stenogs more confidence, but little in the way of more ability. The dope calls for Tech to defeat Business today, if only because Tech's outfit seems never to lose to a team it should beat. Only Bobby Lucas looms as a threat on the part of Business, the others showing little in the shape of excellent shooting and guarding.

In other scholastic games today Western High meets Staunton Military Academy at Staunton; Gonzaga plays the Gallaudet Reserves, at Gonzaga; St. John's Cadets entertain Woodward at St. John's, and St. Alban's visit St. Christopher's tossers at Richmond.

Burke and Hargrave Sign Nat Contracts

Two more signed contracts were received yesterday by President Clark Griffith, of the Nationals. The morning's mail brought in one bearing the signature of Bob Burke, young southpaw hurler, while another, signed by Catcher William McKinley (Pinky) Hargrave, arrived in the afternoon.

Hargrave advised the Nat owner that he has been working hard since the 1930 season ended, is in tip-top shape, and has lost 18 pounds. In view of this statement, Griffith has cancelled plans calling for the backstopper to take a preliminary training course at Hot Springs.

Dinkler, Capital Youth, Signed by Hagerstown

Charley Dinkler, hard-hitting center fielder of the Skinker Bros. Eagles last season, who had an average of around the .500 mark on District sandlots, has been offered a contract by Owner Joe Cambria, of the Hagerstown club of the Blue Ridge League. Dinkler was recommended by President Clark Griffith, of the Nationals, who has been promised an option on the youngster's services.

BOWLING SWEEPSTAKES MAY DRAW RECORD ENTRY

1930 Winners Are Due to Compete

Sixty or More of Best Pinmen in D. C. to Seek Honors.

15-Game Event Starts Tomorrow at the Coliseum.

By JOHN V. HINKEL.

MAXIE ROSENBERG, George Friend, Dutch Newman, Brad Manley and Paul Harrison, who finished in that order in the 1930 affair, again will compete in the fifth annual running of the Howard Campbell Sweepstakes, Washington's premier bowling event, which starts tomorrow night at the Coliseum Alleys.

Besides these 1930 prize winners, a galaxy of other star pinmen, in fact, about every outstanding maple crasher in the District and its suburbs, will be on hand for the event.

Record List of 56 Entries To Be Surpassed.

"All told," says Arville A. Ebersole, Washington City Duckpin Association secretary, who is handling the affair, "we expect about 60 entries, perhaps more. This will be the largest number which has competed since the stakes were first founded in 1927. Last year we had a record-breaking total of 56 entries, but judging from the interest displayed this year and the number of men who have signified their intention of entering, the list should exceed the 1930 total."

A significant feature of the 15-game sweepstakes is the fact that the totals compiled in the 1927 affair have never been bettered. Glenn Wolstenholme copped first prize then with an 1,844 aggregate, while Johnny Welsh crashed out a 665 record set and Freddie Moore a 185 game. The closest Wolstenholme's mark came to being shattered was last year, when Maxie Rosenberg shot an 1,834. Wolstenholme and Moore undoubtedly will compete again this year.

Five monetary prizes ranging from around $750 down to $125 and six $25 awards make the stakes one of the richest events of its kind ever staged in the United States. Based on the predicted entry list, first prize will be worth approximately $725; second, $350; third, $225; fourth, $150, and fifth, $75.

Special Nightly Prizes of $25 Are Offered.

Irrespective of the number of entries, $25 prizes will go to the pinman rolling high game and the one collecting high set each of the three nights of the affair. Winners of the first five prizes, however, automatically will be ineligible for these game and set awards.

Besides the ones already named, other stellar pinmen who have indicated their intention of entering the sweepstakes are Red Megaw, Jack Wolstenholme, Bernie Prye, Eddie Espey, Red Morgan, Howard Campbell, John Blick, Ollie Pacini, Jack Whalen, Burt Parsons, Oscar Hiser, Henry Hiser, Clem Weidmann, Perce Wolfe, George Isemann, Hugh Waldrop, Art Logan, Hokie Smith, Norman Scroth, Oscar Swain, John Deputy, Louis Pantos, Tony Santini, Sam Benson, Fred Lindstrom, Carroll Daly, Harold Hodges, Charlie Walson, Carl Stoner, Charlie Barnard, Tiny Schechter, Al Work, Al Fischer, Phil Goodall, Billy Kessler, Leo Rinaldi, Harry Acton, Tom Purr, Chester Bild, Mag Wood, C. H. Wolfe and Dave Boston. Most of these men have season averages so far between 110 and 119.

The second five-game block of the sweepstakes will be rolled Saturday, January 31, at the Convention Hall drives, and the third and final block, Saturday February 7, at Lucky Strike. Rolling in each block will start promptly at 7:30 o'clock.

WHIRLWINDS DO DAMAGE.

Eastern Whirlwinds captured their first contest in the District of Columbia Basket Ball League last night at the Boys Club, downing the Palace D. G. S. outfit by the score 26 to 14.

The Whirlwinds were off to an early lead and stayed in the van throughout. Cheppel's shooting and the all-around good guarding of the team wrought the victory.

10-TO-1 SHOT SCORES AT MIAMI

James M. Wins Feature With Intrepid Next Home.

HIALEAH RACE TRACK, Miami, Fla., Jan. 22 (A.P.).—Mrs. H. E. Thomas' colt James M., considerably neglected in the betting, flashed first to the wire in the fourth event, a test of a mile and a sixteenth which headed a mediocre card here this afternoon.

Intrepid another long shot, was second, with Woodgain third. James M ran the distance in 1:48 over a good, drying out track, and returned $21.50 for $2.00.

Glenno, Heavy Favorite, Out of Money.

Glenno, with Workman up, was the heavy favorite, but finished fourth with no excuses after being hard ridden. Woodgain had all the early speed of the party, stealing away to a two length's lead, followd by Rasselas and Glenno.

After six furlongs Woodgain began to tire and James M. last to the far turn, came fast around the field, while Intrepid, also slow to get going, made a strong bid. James M drew away in the final drive to score by a length. Intrepid beat Woodgain a head for the place.

STOCKS MOVE AHEAD WHILE SALES CLIMB

Scores of Leading Shares Advance One Point; U. S. Steel Up 2½.

BROKERS' LOANS DECLINE

Short covering, particularly in the last hour, sent prices up 1 to 2 points or more, and the market closed strong, showing the best activity of the year during the last hour rally. Sales of 1,860,740 shares were about 450,000 larger than yesterday's. Bonds easily kept their heads above water, despite $75,000,000 in new issues. Grains lagged, but cotton rallied.

Continued strength of the rails from the opening made the shorts uneasy and bear lines were pulled aboard in all directions. One of George F. Baker's rare public comments, to the effect that the venerable banker saw "slight indications of a return of good business on sound lines," was received attentively by a market hungry for expressions of opinion from those in high financial places, but there was nothing in the business news to influence the trend. Suspension of a member firm having headquarters in the interior passed unnoticed.

Net gains of 2 to 2½ points in United States Steel, American Can, American Telephone, Westinghouse, Sears-Roebuck, North American, Fox, New York Central, Northern Pacific, Consolidated Gas and American Water Works indicated the extent to which the short interest retreated.

Auburn Auto Up 6 Points.

Another bear squeeze sent Auburn Auto up 6, while Chemical and International Business Machines rallied 5. Scores of prominent stocks gained at least a point.

There was some hesitation in the morning, coincident with temporary heaviness of U. S. Steel, news that a cigar store chain had cut cigarette prices, and considerable pressure against radio. The persistent improvement of the carriers, yesterday's strong spot, however, suggested good buying, and the entire list took its cue from that group.

Inasmuch as stocks had been irregularly higher during the week covered by the brokers' loan report, the drop of $63,000,000 was construed as evidence of investment buying. In some quarters a small advance had been expected on the theory that heavy bond offerings might have prompted considerable borrowing.

Wall street kept its ear open for the Reserve Bank's action on the rediscount rate, which remained unchanged. Recent cuts in acceptances have inspired talk of a still lower rate, chiefly as an encouragement to bonds.

Plethora of Loan Funds.

The demand loan market is so surfeited with money that between 50 and 75 millions went begging today; and with bankers' bills scarce there has been something of a scramble for high grade bonds, notably Liberties and Treasuries.

The Bank of England lost about $11,000,000 in gold during the last week, while the French Bank's reserves increased by a slightly larger amount, which means that measures taken to check the movement from London to Paris have not yet been effective. Silver, sterling exchange here firmed enough to put the rate above the gold point, suggesting purchase by the Reserve Bank of London bills as a supporting measure.

Bearish Argentine crop estimates depressed corn a cent. Wheat closed steady to ¼ lower; apparently the market was little affected by reports that the Farm Board did not plan to support the new crop. Cotton's closing range was 8 to 17 points higher.

General firmness of the foreign exchanges was broken by a drop of several points in the Spanish peseta.

Canada's Wheat Crop 395,854,000 Bushels

Ottawa, Jan. 22 (A.P.).—The estimate of Canada's 1930 wheat crop was increased by more than 2,000,000 bushels in a report today by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

The estimate for all Canada was 397,872,000 bushels, of which 374,500,000 were produced in the prairie provinces. The provisional estimate November 13 was 395,854,000 bushels for all Canada, and 374,000,000 for the prairie provinces. The estimate for Ontario jumped 1,539,000 bushels, Alberta's increased 1,900,000. The Manitoba estimate decreased 1,222,000 bushels and Saskatchewan's remained practically unchanged.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, Jan. 22 (A.P.).—Staggered by estimates that Argentina would be able to export corn in record breaking volume this season, corn fell almost 2 cents a bushel today. Buenos Aires dispatches said that an Argentine corn crop was assured which would furnish 380,000,000 bushels for export, compared with a five-year average of 250,000,000. Stop-loss selling here resulted, and subsequent rallies lacked force.

Corn closed nervous ⅞ to 1¼ cents below yesterday's finish, wheat ⅜ off to ¼ of a cent up, oats ¼ to ⅝ of a cent down, and provisions unchanged to 10 cents decline.

The drop in corn was from top prices scored on an early bulge that accompanied a transient advance of wheat. Word of further rain in Argentina tended temporarily to lift wheat, as 20 per cent of wheat in northern Argentina was reported unthreshed and 30 per cent in southern Argentina, with quality so poor as to promise no financial return for additional labor. The news about Argentine corn, however, soon eclipsed other factors and during the last half of the day corn dominated all the cereals.

Not only were prospective huge exports of corn from Argentina a bearish influence, but also current big shipments. The outward movement of Argentine corn to other countries in the last week totaled 7,283,000 bushels against 2,041,000 a year ago. Corn primary receipts in the United States today were 628,000 bushels, against 504,000 a week ago and 801,000 a year back.

Wheat was unaffected by reports that stabilization operations would end in May. Chairman Legge said the Federal Farm Board had made no decision. Wheat trade in Chicago yesterday was reported as only 6,000,000 bushels, compared with almost 38,000,000 a year ago. Oats traders based operations on the course of other cereals.

BONDS' PRICE INDEX AT NEW 1931 PEAK

EVERY GROUP CLIMBS

New York, Jan. 22 (A.P.).—Bond prices as gauged by the averages made a new high for the new year today despite the competition from new issues that were the second largest of the month.

The ability of the bond market to maintain its advance in the face of new issues aggregating $75,000,000 was indicative of the enormous demand extant for profitable investments.

It was estimated that approximately $50,000,000 went begging in the call money market despite an outside rate of one per cent. Federal reserve funds were offered at 1-4 of one per cent. Two dealers made a further cut in acceptance rates in an effort to attract offerings. The supply of bills is small and banks are holding on to those they have in their portfolios.

In view of the prospect that money rates will continue at inordinately low levels for some time, the activity in new issues is believed to be the most important factor in the behavior of the bond market at the present time.

Apparently investment houses, profiting by the lesson of 1930, will make a studied effort to feed the market no more new issues than it can digest. The offerings today represented the first volume of any consequence in a week and brought the total for the month thus far to more than $350,000,000. Subscription books were closed early in the day by offering houses.

There was a slight reaction in some prominent railroad and utility issues but most of the day's changes were on the upside. Legal issues of the Union Pacific reached new high levels for the last year. Rails advanced 4-10ths of a point in the averages, and Industrials and Utilities also gained. Treasury issues led the advance in the United States Government section, the 3 3-8s of two maturities surpassing 1930 peaks. The sharp rise in Brazilians was the individual feature of the firm trend displayed by foreign obligations.

FINE ARTS BUILDING FOR MALL LOCATION IS BEING CONSIDERED

DELANO SAYS MELLON WILL BACK PROPOSAL

Plans for Street Widening Are Discussed by Trade Board Bodies.

A national fine arts building, which would be located on the north side of the Mall between Twelfth and Fourteenth streets, is being considered as part of the Government's development in that area, Frederic A. Delano, chairman of the Park and Planning Commission, told a joint meeting of the streets and avenues and traffic committees of the Washington Board of Trade at a meeting held at the Raleigh Hotel yesterday.

Secretary of the Treasury Mellon is personally interested in the project and will back it, according to Mr. Delano. The huge building, under present plans, would occupy the two blocks between Twelfth and Fourteenth streets, and would be one of the finest structures in the development.

Speaking of the many requests to keep Thirteenth street northwest open from Pennsylvania avenue, Mr. Delano said that one of the plans advanced would prevent certain types of traffic using this street and to keep it open by means of an archway at the Mall development.

Streets Are Discussed.

Mr. Delano also discussed plans to widen Twelfth street from Pennsylvania avenue to Massachusetts avenue northwest, and said that the thoroughfare could be broadened by at least 20 feet. Overhanging bay windows of some of the old structures along Twelfth street could be removed, and some of the steps leading from the same buildings to the street could also be taken away to make room for a wider street, he said.

Another plan is afoot to widen Ninth street northwest in the same manner, although this would necessitate removing 20 feet from the Arts and Industries Building of the Smithsonian Institution group.

Plans for handling traffic at E street are covered by three projects, he said. One of these is to widen E street through to New York avenue in order to allow passage of traffic west on E street to New York avenue.

Would Be 70-Foot Road.

Fourteenth street would be widened into a 70-foot road under the second plan, cutting down through the Mall, with an underpass from B street northwest to F street southwest, and the same thing would be done with Twelfth street.

Mr. Delano suggests that the streets be give nnames in alphabetical order rather than designating them by letters. He explained the B street northwest would be one of the finest boulevards in the country and declared that the simple designation "B street" was not inspiring. Naming of some of the main streets in the development after Presidents of the United States was suggested as an alternative.

The Board of Trade committees favored the plans outlined by Mr. Delano and promised to back them.

Youth in Hospital; Blames Conductor

What he said was an argument over a street car transfer sent Randolph Fritter, 17, of Clarendon, Va., to Emergency Hospital yesterday with lacerations of the head.

The altercation occurred at Fourteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue, Fred E. O'Brien, of Sixteenth street near A southeast, who was a passenger on the car, took the youth over to the traffic policeman at the intersection and he in turn summoned a police emergency car which took Fritter to the hospital. Fritter declared the carman hit him with the iron handle used to open and close doors.

Although the conductor was not taken in custody, the Clarendon boy is expected to institute assault proceedings against him.

Inspector Brown Confers With Representative on Traffic Plaint.

PARLEY RESULT SECRET

Representative Jeff Busby, of Mississippi, against whom Policeman Raymond V. Sinclair, of the Traffic Bureau, had planned yesterday to prefer three charges of violation of traffic regulations, remained "off" the arrest book of the bureau last night.

The policeman's expressed intention of asking for a warrant for Mr. Busby was delayed due to the request of Inspector Brown, chief of the bureau, who planned to go to the House Office Building and talk to the Southerner about the incident.

Just what transpired at this meeting was unknown. Inspector Borwn remaining "out," and officials of the bureau professing to know nothing of what developed.

Representative Busby is alleged to have been driving his automobile with two lights out; with having passed through a red light at Sixteenth and Euclid streets northwest, and with having exceeded the speed limit on Sixteenth street. When he was stopped by Policeman Sinclair he refused to accept service on a "ticket" and the officer reported the affair to his superior officers.

Maj. Pratt instructed the policeman to follow the same procedure in Busby's case that he would in any other and the matter rested that way until Inspector Brown declared he planned to interview the congressman.

But there wasn't any.

Mrs. Kandel tried again but to no result.

Terror gripped her. The husband and child inside had been overcome by gas. Yes, that was it.

Frantic, she summoned the Fire Rescue Squad. The trip was not necessary. It developed that Mr. Kandel and the youngster simply had slept too soundly.

The unusual charges of riding a bicycle on the sidewalk and drinking in public appeared on the arrest book of the Sixth Precinct last night, with Paul Paleux, an interpreter, of Pennsylvania avenue near Third street northwest, as the victim.

Speaking at the Mayflower Hotel before one of the largest and most enthusiastic meetings of the Washington Real Estate Board, these men suggested an attractive and effective guide systems, for visitors of either weeks or hours; formation of an organization to insure their satisfaction; a great newspaper advertising campaign inducing outsiders to spend at least a year of their lives here; window displays announcing the city's advantages to visiting throngs and follow-up letters expressing its appreciation of their coming here.

Crowds of persons were attracted to the scene, and traffic near the building was stopped for more than fifteen minutes.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

THAT BREAK IN NIAGARA FALLS.

(More than 1,000,000 cubic feet of rock has crumbled from the rim of Niagara Falls, changing the contour of one of the world's most majestic scenic wonders. The great mass of rock broke asunder and plunged with a terrific crash into the gorge."—News item).

"WELL," said Elmer Twitchell today, "what can you expect under the present administration?"

* * * *

Elmer was pretty worked up over this mishap to Niagara Falls.

* * * *

"It's all President Hoover's fault," he declared, "and just another indication that the country needs a change of administration at Washington."

* * * *

"Aren't you a little unreasonable?" Mr. Twitchell was asked.

"No," he thundered. "You never heard of Niagara Falls ever having anything happen to them under a Democratic regime, did you?"

* * * *

"DO you mean to tell me 1,000,000 cubic feet of rock would have fallen from the rim of the falls if Al Smith had been in the White House?" demanded Elmer. "Did the Falls ever crumble under Wilson? You didn't notice Niagara falling to pieces under Cleveland, did you?"

"Nothing happened to Niagara Falls under Calvin Coolidge or Warren Harding, either," Mr. Twitchell was reminded.

"I have my doubts," put in Mr. Twitchell. "A great scenic wonder like that don't go to pieces overnight. It's a gradual process. Niagara had probably been weakening under the last two Republican Presidents. I think it is a matter the Democrats in Congress should investigate. I don't want to be too severe on Hoover. He's just unlucky, that's all. Nevertheless, Niagara crumbled under his term in office and he will have to shoulder the responsibility."

"WHAT could Hoover have done to have kept Niagara intact?" Mr. Twitchell was asked.

"That's not for me to say," he replied. "He's an engineer, ain't he?"

"I tell you this sudden change in the contour of Niagara Falls is a very bad break for the President. It is something the American people will not overlook. For generations they have been accustomed to Niagara Falls looking just like the pictures in the geographies and travel books. How do you think they are going to feel when they visit them and see that they've changed completely?

"The Democratic party now has the greatest opportunity in history."

"What is it?"

"It can fix the blame on the Republicans for all damage to the falls, pledge itself to restore them to their original lines and adopt a platform guaranteeing that nothing will happen to change the general appearance of the Grand Canyon, the Great Salt Lake, Old Faithful or any other scenic wonder!" concluded Elmer.

MAYBE IT'S BOTHERED YOU, TOO.

This question must puzzle

Little Schoolboy Missing Seven Weeks From Home

Today it is seven weeks since Julian Shane, doughty 13-year-old schoolboy, disappeared from his home at 612 G street northwest. His pretty sister, Helen, narrated last night to a Post reporter the circumstances leading up to her brother's departure.

On December 4, the day before he left, Julian had had a scrap with one of his comrades, a member of the schoolboy patrol. There followed a reprimand from the teacher and when the boy returned home that night he told his mother that he didn't want to go to school any more.

A good night's sleep failed to lessen Julian's resolve. Next morning his mother made him ready for the daily attack on the three R's and accompanied him to the door. After he had gone some little distance, but not out of earshot of his mother, who was still standing in the doorway, Julian called to her: "I'm going West."

He had 25 cents in his pocket and his only clothing was that on his little frame. His family hasn't seen him since.

PETITION TO MODIFY CONSENT DECREE TO BE SUBMITTED SOON

Commission Ignores Advice of Bride, Who Will Follow Its Directions.

KEECH, DISSATISFIED, MAY GO INTO COURT

Valuation May Again Be Raised in Dispute on Fair Rate Return.

The petition to modify the consent decree under which the rates of the Potomac Electric Power Co. are established each year will be filed in the District Supreme Court within the next few days, it was indicated yesterday after the Public Utilities Commission announced that it had decided to adhere to its previous plan for modification and to override the advice of Corporation Counsel William W. Bride to abrogate the agreement.

While Mr. Bride was at home ill yesterday and could not be reached for comment, he had previously stated that he would follow the instructions of the commission no matter what his opinion might be. William A. Roberts, assistant corporation counsel, said the action would probably be taken just as soon as the utilities body furnished Mr. Bride with the necessary data.

Under the terms of the petition the commission will seek to have the rate of return allowed the power company by the decree before the excess profits are subject to division with the public reduced from 7½ to 6¾ per cent. This division would vary according to the extent of the excess gains.

Complications Are Looming.

Several possible complications loomed yesterday to block the efforts of the commission. Richmond B. Keech, the people's counsel, expressed dissatisfaction with the plan and indicated that he may go into court himself. He will not likely take any action, however, until after the petition is filed by the corporation counsel and he may wait until the power company makes its reply.

Much of the success of the commission's plan hinges on the attitude of the power company. Should it agree to the modification, the alteration with a subsequent reduction in electric rates would probably be effected within a short time. B t, if the utility organization objects to a change of the present procedure, as it indicated, it would at the public hearing on the 1931 rates December 31, the matter may get into prolonged litigation such as it did prior to the enactment of the consent decree in the last days of 1924.

The scheme for modifying the agreement between the power company and the utilities body was evolved by Vice Chairman Harleigh H. Hartman, legal member of the commission, after a study of the opinion of Justice Jennings Bailey in the meat packers' case. It is his contention that the court can modify the decree without the consent of the power company is it modified a similar decree in the packers' suit.

Prolonged Litigation Is Seen.

There is a danger, however, that the question of a proper valuation may be raised in the court and, unless another compromise is reached, as it was in the consent decree, prolonged litigation may result. The rate base in that instance was arrived at taking a middle figure between the extreme valuations of the commission and the power company. This was $32,500,000 "plus the actual cost of future additions, undepreciated, but weighted during a period of any one year."

Maj. Gen. Mason M. Patrick, chairman of the commission, declined again yesterday to reveal the contents of the opinion of Mr. Bride in which an answer was given to the query as to what effect the meat packers' case opinion might have on the electric rate consent decree. It is believed, however, that the opinion did not give the utilities body much encouragement on this score.

At any rate, when the petition is presented to the court, the situation will be presented of counsel asking for something against which it advised its client.

Gas Co. Ordered To Fix Equipment

Changes Required to Conform With Pressure Standard Set Up.

The Public Utilities Commission late yesterday informed the Washington Gas Light Co. that it must adjust all consumers' equipment to conform with the standard 6-inch gas pressure which the commission has established. The revisions must be made under the supervision of the commission's engineering department.

For the time being the company will be allowed to use 8-inch pressure, the utilities body stated, but the reduction in the maximum must be effected as soon as possible. The commission also advised the gas company to expedite its program for relieving high gas pressure by construction of new mains.

An investigation which revealed that the pressure was running higher than that permitted by the commission followed the receipt of several complaints from consumers.

Theft of $25 Is Reported.

Oscar Rufus Doyle, of Cherrydale, Va., yesterday told police that his pocketbook, containing $25 in bills, was taken from his clothes lying on a desk in the old Brightwood School Building at Georgia avenue and Quackenbos street northwest, where he was working.

MEN OF NORTHEAST AT ANNUAL DINNER

CHEST FUND IS HELPED

Merriment and hilarious gayety last night prevailed at the annual banquet of the Northeast Business Men's Association which was held at the Raleigh Hotel, with more than 600 members and guests attending. Robert W. McCullough, vice president of the association, presided as toastmaster.

There were no speeches, but professional entertainers furnished entertainment, which lasted until early this morning. One of the features was the "pig sale," when a live pig was auctioned off and the proceeds, more than $50, donated to the Community Chest.

Those on the program as entertainers included: Dorothy Skinner, Blanche Arlson, the "M" Trio, Rose Novak and Anna Green, who sang several numbers in addition to a violin solo which was enthusiastically received. Impromptu remarks interspersed by the master of ceremonies kept the gathering amused during the dinner.

Members of the banquet committee were: W. R. King, chairman; Thomas J. Luckett, B. W. Seaton, John M. Beane, Paul Hurney, A. A. Thompson, Farry P. White, W. Barrett, A. Marcus and John Pappas.

Two Women Overcome By Gas; One Dies Later

Two colored women, both 60 years old, one of them a bedridden paralytic for 16 months, were overcome yesterday afternoon by escaping gas in a house at 1128 New Hampshire avenue northwest. The invalid, Jane Alexander, 60 years old, died as a result of the accident.

Mary Spriggs, 60, her nurse, was taken to Emergency Hospital by the rescue squad where she was said last night to be recovering. The gas leaked from an open heater.

Prisoner Kicks Policeman.

Policeman Harold Johnson, on traffic duty at Fourteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue, was kicked in the stomach late last night by a Negro whom he had placed under arrest. The prisoner, Clifton Dade Pollard, 22, of P street near Twelfth street northwest, is held for investigation. Johnson was taken to Emergency Hospital. His condition was not believed serious.

Youth Is Sent to Gallinger.

Following his alleged attempt at suicide last night while in the rooms of the Episcopal City Mission at 1329 K street northwest, George W. Walls, 18 years old, was taken to Gallinger Hospital for mental observation. His condition is not serious, hospital authorities said.

ACTION SEEN TODAY ON TRAFFIC CHANGE

Senator Kean Will Seek Immediate Favorable Report on Measure.

LOANS BILL IS STUDIED

The new District traffic bill is due for action by the traffic subcommittee of the Senate District committee today, Senator Hamilton F. Kean (Republican), of New Jersey, chairman of the subcommittee, said yesterday.

Senator Kean said unofficially that he favored the new traffic law proposed by the District Commissioners and would seek to get an immediate favorable report from his subcommittee. Copies of the amended bill have been distributed to committee members with the request that they study it and be prepared to act today.

This afternoon the full District committee, under the chairmanship of Senator Arthur C. Capper (Republican), of Kansas, is to conduct hearings on the credit union and small loans bills for the District. Indications are that both will be reported favorably.

The House District committee is to meet this morning to consider amendments to the Bowman small loans bill, and it is likely that this committee, too, will make a favorable report on the measure.

The committee has been urged to take immediate favorable action on the bill providing for merger of the Washington and Georgetown gas companies. The most important feature of the bill has to do with loosening of existing restrictions on the financial structure of the company.

Police Raiders Get 800 Gallons of Intoxicants

Members of the police liquor squad yesterday afternoon confiscated more than 500 gallons of alleged rye whisky and 300 gallons of alcohol when an old building was raided at Twenty-fifth and G streets northwest. No one was in the building at the time police raided it.

The alleged liquor was said to have been stored in 25-gallon barrels, and to have been covered with carpets and straw. The raid was conducted by Sergt. N. O. Holmes and R. N. Williams, of the liquor squad.

SPECIAL GIFTS FUND IN DRIVE FOR CHEST CLIMBS TO $528,865

Mr. and Mrs. Hammond Give $10,000 and Hogans Add $6,000.

$1,000,000 IS QUOTA IN INITIAL CAMPAIGN

Many Requests Received for Speakers to Appear at Club Functions.

The special gifts committee of the Community Chest yesterday passed the $528,865 mark in its drive to fill a $1,000,000 quota before the regular campaign opens January 26. The group continues to maintain the general average of $1,000 per subscriber, it was announced at the noon meeting yesterday at the Willard Hotel.

In passing the $500,000 mark, the unit has secured contributions from 390 givers. Gifts announced yesterday were from 94 donators and totaled $95,350 for the day's work.

The largest gift reported was for $10,000 from Mr. and Mrs. John Hays Hammond. Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Hogan contributed $6,000.

Enthusiasm Shown.

W. J. Flather, jr., whose team has consistently reported large increases in gifts this year, and whose report yesterday showed average increases of 40 per cent, said that he had encountered much enthusiasm among prospects. "They have shown a fine spirit in giving and are greeting our workers with cordial welcome. Personally, I am having a fine time," he said.

Joseph P. Tumulty told of being refused a gift for the Chest by one man, who later relented and sent a check for $500 with a touching letter.

Many Requests for Speakers.

Meanwhile, preparations for the intensive period of the Chest's campaign, opening Monday, are being pushed in several directions. Requests for Community Chest speakers to present messages to clubs, schools, churches, business firms and other organizations are pouring in, and are being promptly filled by the speakers' unit.

Many Talks Scheduled.

Dozens of these preliminary talks are scheduled over the city for today.

A special appeal to 4,000 Jewish residents of Washington enlisting their support in the Chest campaign was broadcast yesterday by the Jewish Welfare Federation. The appeal was indorsed by presidents of the Jewish agencies in the federation as well as by all the rabbis of the District of Columbia.

The appeal pointed to the service the Community Chest has given the various Jewish agencies and groups since its organization in Washington.

Plan Special Display.

The city will don gala attire in honor of the campaign, it was announced yesterday. The District Commissioners have agreed with plans of Chest officials for displaying the national emblem, interspersed with Community Chest flags, from sidewalk flagstaffs. Store windows will be decorated and the merchants will be requested to display the flags Saturday night so they will be in place Sunday. Sunday will be designated as Community Chest Sunday in all churches of the city.

Gen. John J. Pershing, chairman of the governmental unit of the Chest campaign, was notified yesterday that the Tacomis Club has voted an appropriation of $25 for the fund above personal subscriptions from members. The Tacomis Club is composed of 175 members of the Tariff Commission.
